FOREWORD

To all intents and purposes, all the Grays of Hancock County and nearby areas stem from Joshua Gray, b. Nov., 1714 at York, Me. d. 1781-90 Sedgwick, Me., and his wife Jennat (Elliot). Joshua and four of his sons, Andrew, James, John and Reuben, came to Fort Pownall (on the Penobscot River near what is now Searsport) as soldiers in 1759 during the French and Indian War. When the war ended Apr. 29, 1760 they elected not to return to their former homes, but instead settled (apparently as "squatters") at Castine. They were joined by two more of Joshua's sons, Samuel and Joshua, Jr., and by at least three daughters, Mary, and two whose names are not known. They lived at Castine until about 1768, then for reasons that are not clear, but which apparently relate to land title, the whole clan upped stakes and moved up the Bagaduce River to its' head and took up land on both sides of the river. The lands of the several brothers and brothers-in-law, as well as the father, adjoined so there was in effect a good sized Gray enclave within the bounds of the newly established "Township No. Four", later called Sedgwick. Apparently the heavy diet of fish and shellfish tended toward fertility - large families were the rule rather than the exception for several generations. A goodly number of the men went to sea but many more literally stayed with the land, for it was not all unusual for a man to marry, raise a family, and die within a five mile radius of where he was born.

There is no doubt that the descendants of Joshua Gray rank among the most numerous in Hancock County. Only the male lines of descent have been carried out in this genealogy, but suggested sources for researching female lines have been included wherever possible. Much information is available at the Deer Isle, Stonington Historical Society, Deer Isle, the Brooksville Historical Society, Brooksville and the State Archives at Augusta. The Blue Hill Library at Blue Hill and the State Library at Augusta have manuscripts, published genealogies and histories which will be helpful. The Maine Historical Society at Portland, New England Genealogical and Historical Society in Boston and the Bangor, Me. Public Library are also places of much information.

This book is divided into seven main parts with a numbering system as follows:

Part I Andrew Gray Family
Part II John Gray Family
Part III Reuben Gray Family
Part IV James Gray Family
Part V Samuel Gray Family
Part VI Joshua Gray, Jr. Family
Part VII Addenda, which includes unclassified Gray families, corrections and additions.

This is preceded by an introduction designated by the abbreviation I. Each part is divided into sections: I-1; I-2; I-3 etc. Part 1 is numbered 1-1; 1-2; 1-3 and part two 2-1; 2-2; 2-3 etc. Each section, in most cases, is a family unit with the unit number placed at the top showing the subject as head of a family. Example:

1-2 WILLIAM GRAY (5) Andrew (4) Joshua (3) b. abt. 1774 etc.

The numbers preceding the name show the section to refer to to find the subject as a child; the number following the name to generation.

If data are available to carry on a line of descent, the children's names are underlined and followed by his number showing where he may be found as head of his family.

Occasionally a unit has more than one section. In these cases the number is put in parenthesis, underlined, and placed within the paragraph to preserve unity.

It will be helpful to the reader to be aware that often a person did not use his legal name, sometimes choosing a middle or nickname. Sometimes several spellings were used. Keeping this in mind may save time in using the index which may be found in the back of the book. The index gives the name, followed by generation number and date of birth if known.

Abbreviations used in this work are, for the most part, standard. Those not included in the following list need no explanation.

We have drawn heavily from the manuscript of Stanley D. Gray and the "East Penobscot Bay Archives" by Dr. B. Lake Noyes. For this, we express our appreciation; also our thanks to Vernal Hutchinson for permission to extract material from his book, "A Maine Town in the Civil War". We are indebted to John A. Gray of Orono, Me. for furnishing nearly all the data pertaining to Ezra Parker Gray (6) and his descendants as well as other miscellaneous information. Thanks are also due the following who never failed to help when called upon; June Gray, W. Sedgwick, Me., Prof. Albert Hill, Surry, Me. and Evelyn (Gray) Huckins of E. Eddington, Me.

We appreciate, also, the cooperation of the town clerks of the various towns who often went "beyond the call of duty" to be of assistance.

Last, but certainly not least, our thanks to the dozens of people, too numerous to mention by name who added bits and pieces of information which helped make this work a more complete history of the family. Their names can be found throughout the book.

INTRODUCTION

INTRODUCTION

(Sect. I-2) [1]The name Gray originated from the name of a place in Burgundy, France, where in the Department of Haute-Saone, there is now a town called GRAY. The name was originally CROY. A Norman chief named Rolf, Rollo, or Raoul, invaded France with his Norwegian followers and established himself in the ninth century. A descendant, or a member of this family became Chamberlain to Robert, Duke of Normandy, and received from him the Castle and Honor of Croy, from which the family assumed the name of DeCroy, which was afterward changed to DeGray and eventually to Gray without the prefix. The Grays migrated from France to England with William the Conqueror in 1066, for among the names of those inscribed at Battle Abbey after the battle of Hastings was the name J. DeGray.

[2]"Many of the proudest titles of England have for centuries been borne by (the Gray family). A sister of Henry VIII married the Duke of Suffolk, who was of that family, and their daughter, Lady Jane Gray wore for a few days the crown of England, her life being the price of the undesired honor."

"From 1620 to 1720, twenty or more distinct families of Grays came to America, a fact which accounts in part for the great difficulty of tracing the ancestry of the immense number of that name."

"The Grays came to America early. They were at Plymouth, Boston and Salem among the first settlers. It is said that Mrs. Desire Kent, daughter of Edward Gray, was the first woman to step ashore at Plymouth Rock."

"There were Grays among the Scotch-Irish Presbyterians who came in 1719 and subsequently from the north of Ireland ..... In the early times there were Grays all along the Maine coast from Kittery to the Kennebec River."

[3]During the years 1651-1652, between three and four hundred prisoners of war captured at the battles of Dunbar and Worcester, Scotland, were transported to New England by Cromwell to be sold as slaves.

In 1650 the town of Dunbar, located on the east coast of Scotland, was the scene of a bloody battle under the leadership of Cromwell, a pius Puritan leader, with his veterans from Ireland, and Gen. David Leslie who was in command of the Covenanters in defense of the Catholics. Leslie's troops outnumbered Cromwell's army, but they were undisciplined clansmen of the Highland chieftains. Cromwell defeated Leslie's disorganized troops and three thousand Scots fell in this disaster, fighting hopelessly to the last. Ten thousand were taken prisoners, and about half of them were so exhausted by their fight, and disabled by wounds, that they were released. The able-bodied prisoners, five thousand in number, were marched down to Durham and Newcastle-on-Tyne. The Cathedral at Durham was converted into a prison and the Highlanders were destined to spend an indefinite period as captives of war. Their food consisted of "Pottage made with Oatmeal, Beef and Cabbage, a full Quart at a Meal for every Prisoner. They had also Coals daily brought them, as many as made about 100 Fires both (Sect. I-3) Night and Day, and Straw to lie upon. ..... They were so unruly, sluttish, and nasty ..... and acted rather like beasts then Men. ..... As to those that were sick, ... they had very good Mutton Broth, and sometimes Veal Broth, and Beef and Mutton boiled together ..... There were also a Physician to let them Blood, and dress such as were wounded, and give the sick Physic."

"Notwithstanding all this many of them died and few of any other Disease than the Flux; some were kill'd by themselves, for they were exceedingly cruel one towards another."

"Sixteen hundred men taken prisoners in a fanatical religious war, died within a period of fifty-eight days, nearly thirty a day. It is a revolting picture of savage cruelty, supplemented by ignorance of elementary hygeine."

Arrangements were soon made to transport Scottish prisoners to New England. In early November, 1650, 150 Scottish prisoners were ordered to Augustine Walker, master of the ship UNITY to be transported to New England. It usually took six weeks to cross the Atlantic in favorable season and it was late December, 1650 before they arrived in Boston Harbor. They suffered from scurvy on the voyage, but how many died is not known. Some were sent to Lynn, Massachusetts to be employed in the iron works, and others were distributed to numerous towns in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine.

An interesting fact in connection with the deportation of these Scots is found in Berwick, formerly a part of Kittery, Me. where a parish was called Unity Parish doubtless from the prisoners who were sent there to work in the sawmills at that place, having come to New England in the ship of that name. in 1656 record of grants of land were made to some of these men, indicating they had been released from servitude. Among those believed to be a part of the Dunbar prisoners settling in the Upper part of Kittery, now Berwick, Me., was George Gray, the progenitor of the Gray Family of Hancock County.

[4]On Oct. 21, 1659, George Gray witnessed a deed to Peter Grant (also on the list of Scottish prisoners) at Kittery, and in 1671 he had a grant of sixty acres of land in Kittery.

Joshua Gray, son of Robert Gray and Elizabeth (Freethy) was born at Old York, Maine[1] and is the progenitor of nearly all of those in Hancock County, Me. bearing the name Gray or Grey. His wife was Jennat Elliot, called Jane in the baptismal record of her children. Possibly she was a daughter of Richard Elliot and Abigail (Wilson) of Hampton and Portsmouth, N. H.[2] What little information is available about Mrs. Gray is in the nature of tradition. According to tradition she was Irish, and it is quite probable that she was one of the Scotch-Irish who began coming to this country in large numbers in 1719. It is also said that she was skilled in the healing art. One story pertinent to this capability has to do with Nathaniel Corsen. It seems that while the British occupied Castine during the Revolution, Mr. Corsen, along with many others in the area, took an oath of allegiance to the Crown, or of neutrality, despite the fact that in his heart he favored the American cause. Sometime later he was accused by the British of giving aid and comfort to the Americans, was taken to Castine, and there sentenced to receive five hundred lashes. After the sentence was carried out Mr. Corsen was in very poor condition, however it is said that he refused the services of a military surgeon[5] and elected instead to have his wounds treated by old Mrs. Gray.

Information regarding this pioneer family is not found in the vital records of any of the towns in the Penobscot Bay area, but has been reconstructed, as shown above, from numerous sources. Stanley D. Gray (3-105) compiled considerable Gray data during his lifetime, and much information regarding Joshua and his descendants has been drawn from his material.[1] He gave the list of Joshua's children with some of the dates which has been supplemented by material obtained from several other sources. It is not known positively how many daughters were in the family, but in addition to the seven sons, there was at least one daughter, Mary. She married Joshua Snow who migrated from Truro, Mass. to Brooksville and became a neighbor of the Grays. They later settled at Snows Cove, W. Sedgwick. According to tradition there were two other daughters whose names have not been verified. B. L. Noyes[3] gives their names as Jane and Rebecca but he gave no reference. Inasmuch as Stanley Gray did not mention these names there appears to be insufficient basis to accept them as factual. According to family tradition these daughters married Loyalists and left the country at the close of the Revolutionary War settling in Sherburn, New Brunswick.[1]

During the Revolution Fort George was constructed at Castine and one of its functions was the protection of the Loyalists. They came from all over New England and beyond to seek refuge. There was much intermingling between the settlers and the refugees, and many marriages took place. As a result of the notification of Aug. 11, 1784 requiring all persons "at or near Majorbagaduce ..... that have been inimical to the United States of America"[4] to present themselves at Fort George to explain satisfactorily their past actions and future intentions, or leave the country, many hundreds left and settled in Canada. During this difficult period few records were kept in this country or Canada which accounts in part, for the difficulty in obtaining family records.

About 1738 Joshua Gray and his family lived in the vicinity of Wells and Brunswick, Me. Records show the baptism of two sons at the First Church of Wells and their births at Brunswick, Me. In 1743 he was still near Brunswick where the birth of his son Reuben is recorded. By 1754 he was at Harpswell, Me. and his daughter Mary was baptized there Sept. 8 of that year.

The names of John, Moses, George, Daniel and Joshua Gray appear on a petition dated Apr. 22, 1755 of the inhabitants of the Kennebec River area for protection from the French and Indians.[6] Probably Joshua, who signed with his mark, was the same man who later moved up the coast to Castine.

Stanley Gray, in his speech at the Gray Family reunion of 1903 said:

(Sect. I-9) "Prior to 1759, the Penobscot River was the outlet of the French and Indians to the sea, and no English were settled above Rockland. Gov. Pownall of Massachusetts, early in that year urged the building of a fort on the Penobscot for the protection of the eastern settlements. As a result it was decided to take possession of the Penobscot region; and Falmouth, now Portland, became the rendezvous for the expedition. Here, during the winter, a blockhouse was framed and made ready to take to the Penobscot. Men were enlisted, largely it is said from Falmouth, Cape Elizabeth, Scarborough, Biddeford and Georgetown, all under the command of Jedediah Preble."

..... "The Muster Rolls preserved in the Colonial archives at the State House, Boston, show that among four hundred men who joined the expedition were Joshua Gray and four of his sons, Reuben, John, Andrew, and James all of whom enlisted Apr. 1, 1759. Unfortunately the place of residence is nowhere given." (Among others who were with this company in His Majestys service commanded by George Berry were Shadrack Watson, Robinson Crockett and William Reed, all prominent settlers of E. Penobscot Bay area.)

"Of such importance was it considered that the Governor of Massachusetts himself accompanied the expedition, and his Journal is the best if not the only account of the Penobscot campaign of 1759. By it we learn that they left Falmouth, May 4, and arrived at Wasaumkeag, now Fort Point, May 17th. A strong fort was planned and its construction pushed so diligently that by July 28th it was completed, the expense being five thousand pounds. It was 90 feet on each side within the breastworks which were ten feet high. There was a moat with drawbridge, and palisades. ..... On the completion of the fort the military force was reduced to about ninety men."

"The building of this fort was an important event in the history of the region around. It marks the beginning of English settlements on the Penobscot. To it came Indians for conferences and terms. Here treaties were made and hostages were held to insure good faith on the part of the redskins. Also they exchanged their furs for such articles of traffic as were usually offered at frontier trading posts."

"In preparation for their first winter on the Penobscot, the commander asked for the following named supplies, which were forwarded:

'Thirty-five Beds with Pillows and Blankets, Twelve Pots that will hold two Pailfuls each, and twelve Frying Pans, Twenty or Thirty Pare of good snow shoes and two pare Morgisons to each Pare, one good Spy-Glass which will be realy necessary to make Discovery (Sect. I-10) of the Enemy, Pot-hooks to each Pot, and a tramel and one Bb Pitch for the Whale Boats, necessaries for the sick this winter as nothing of that kind can be come at in this remote Part of the Province.'

"The soldiers were enlisted for a term which expired July 16th, when three hundred or more of them were discharged. The Grays, however, re-enlisted for a service which continued fifty-eight weeks to Aug. 24, 1760 and then for another term which expired Apr. 6, 1761, making continuous service of over two years."

"Through with soldiering, they crossed the Bay to what is now known as Castine, then Majabagaduce, and long a French Post of importance. Here their families were brought, and home making begun."

"Evidently there was trouble about land titles for 'October ye 3rd, 1763,' the inhabitants of 'Majabagadoos' petitioned to Gov. Barnard for relief, stating, 'that most of your petitioners were soldiers in his Majestie's Service, in the Pay of this Province and were dismissed from the service after the peace was settled and being Humbly of Opinion that some of the lands they had conquered would be as likely to fall to their share as to others, they settled upon the aforesaid Tract of Land, a place where no English Inhabitants had ever before settled, and at great peril, Labor and Expense they have cleared and cultivated some small spots of Land, and have got themselves comfortable houses. Suffering beyond expression, the Last Winter, and after having grappled through these Difficulties they have been able this summer to Raise Sauce and a few necessaries to support their families and have been in hopes to have had their settlements confirmed to them, and accordingly Petitioned to the general court for this purpose long before the said land was granted to others but your petitioners being poor and not able to attend and further their petition they are informed it never reached the General Court, and that now the fruit of their heavy toil and labor is like to be reapt by others unless your petitioners will submit to very hard terms offered them by the new proprietors.'" (A copy of this Petition was published in the Bangor Historical Magazine, Vol. 3, p. 104 and Vol. 8, p. 7. Vol. 8 gives more of the petitioners names than the earlier volume, and in some cases the spellings of the names have been changed. Mr. Gray said that the copies he observed had such errors and being dissatisfied he checked the original, and said concerning this:)

"A recent examination of the original, shows that among the signers were Joshua, James, Andrew, Reuben and John Gray, and after the name of each is written the word SOLDIER." (This is not so in the Bangor Historical Magazine copy, nor are all the Grays listed.)

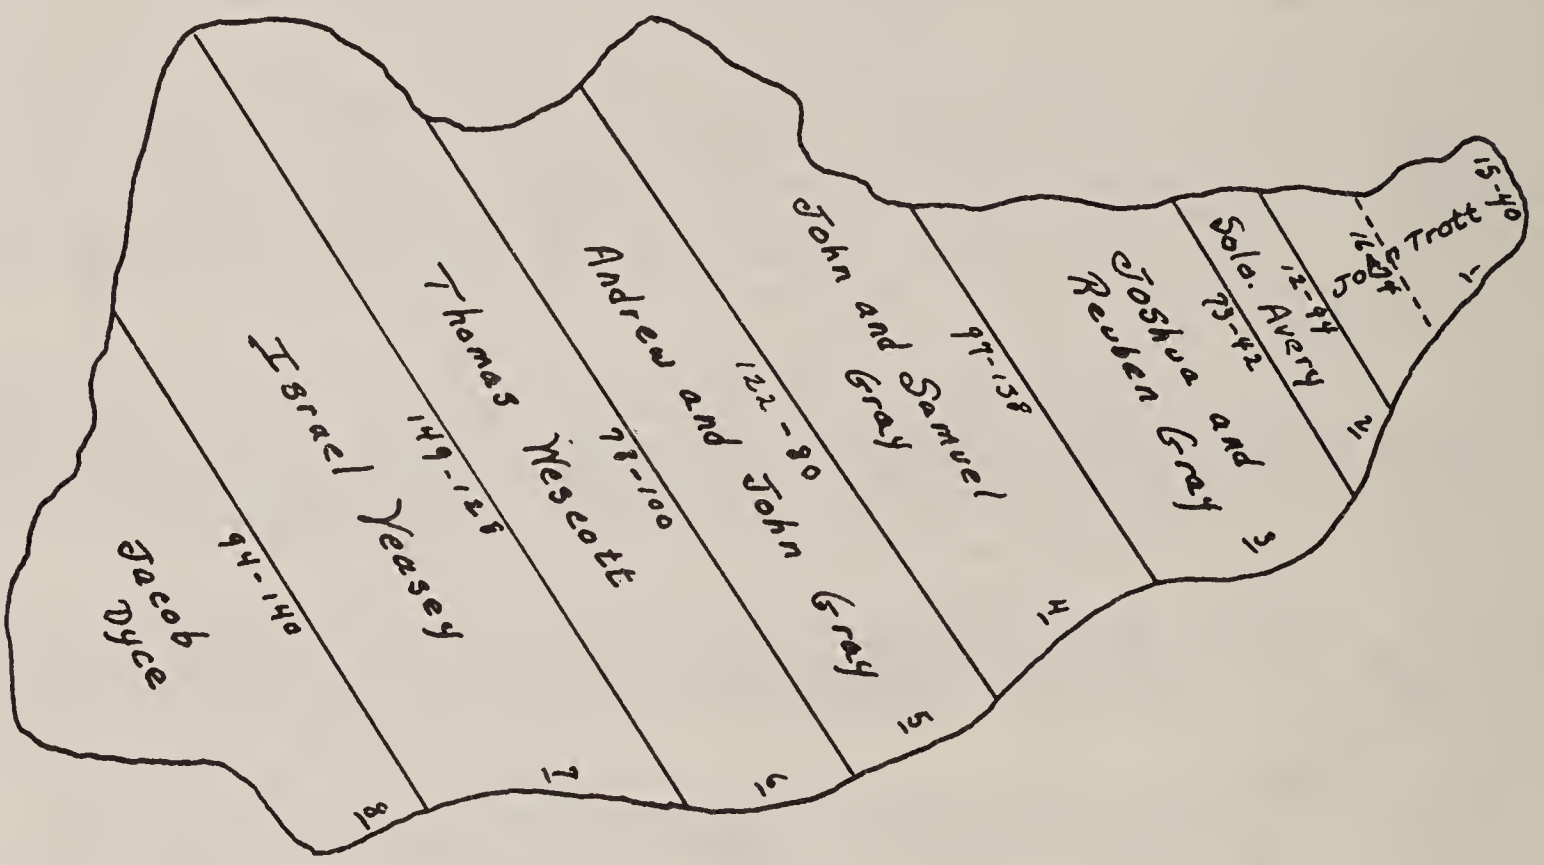
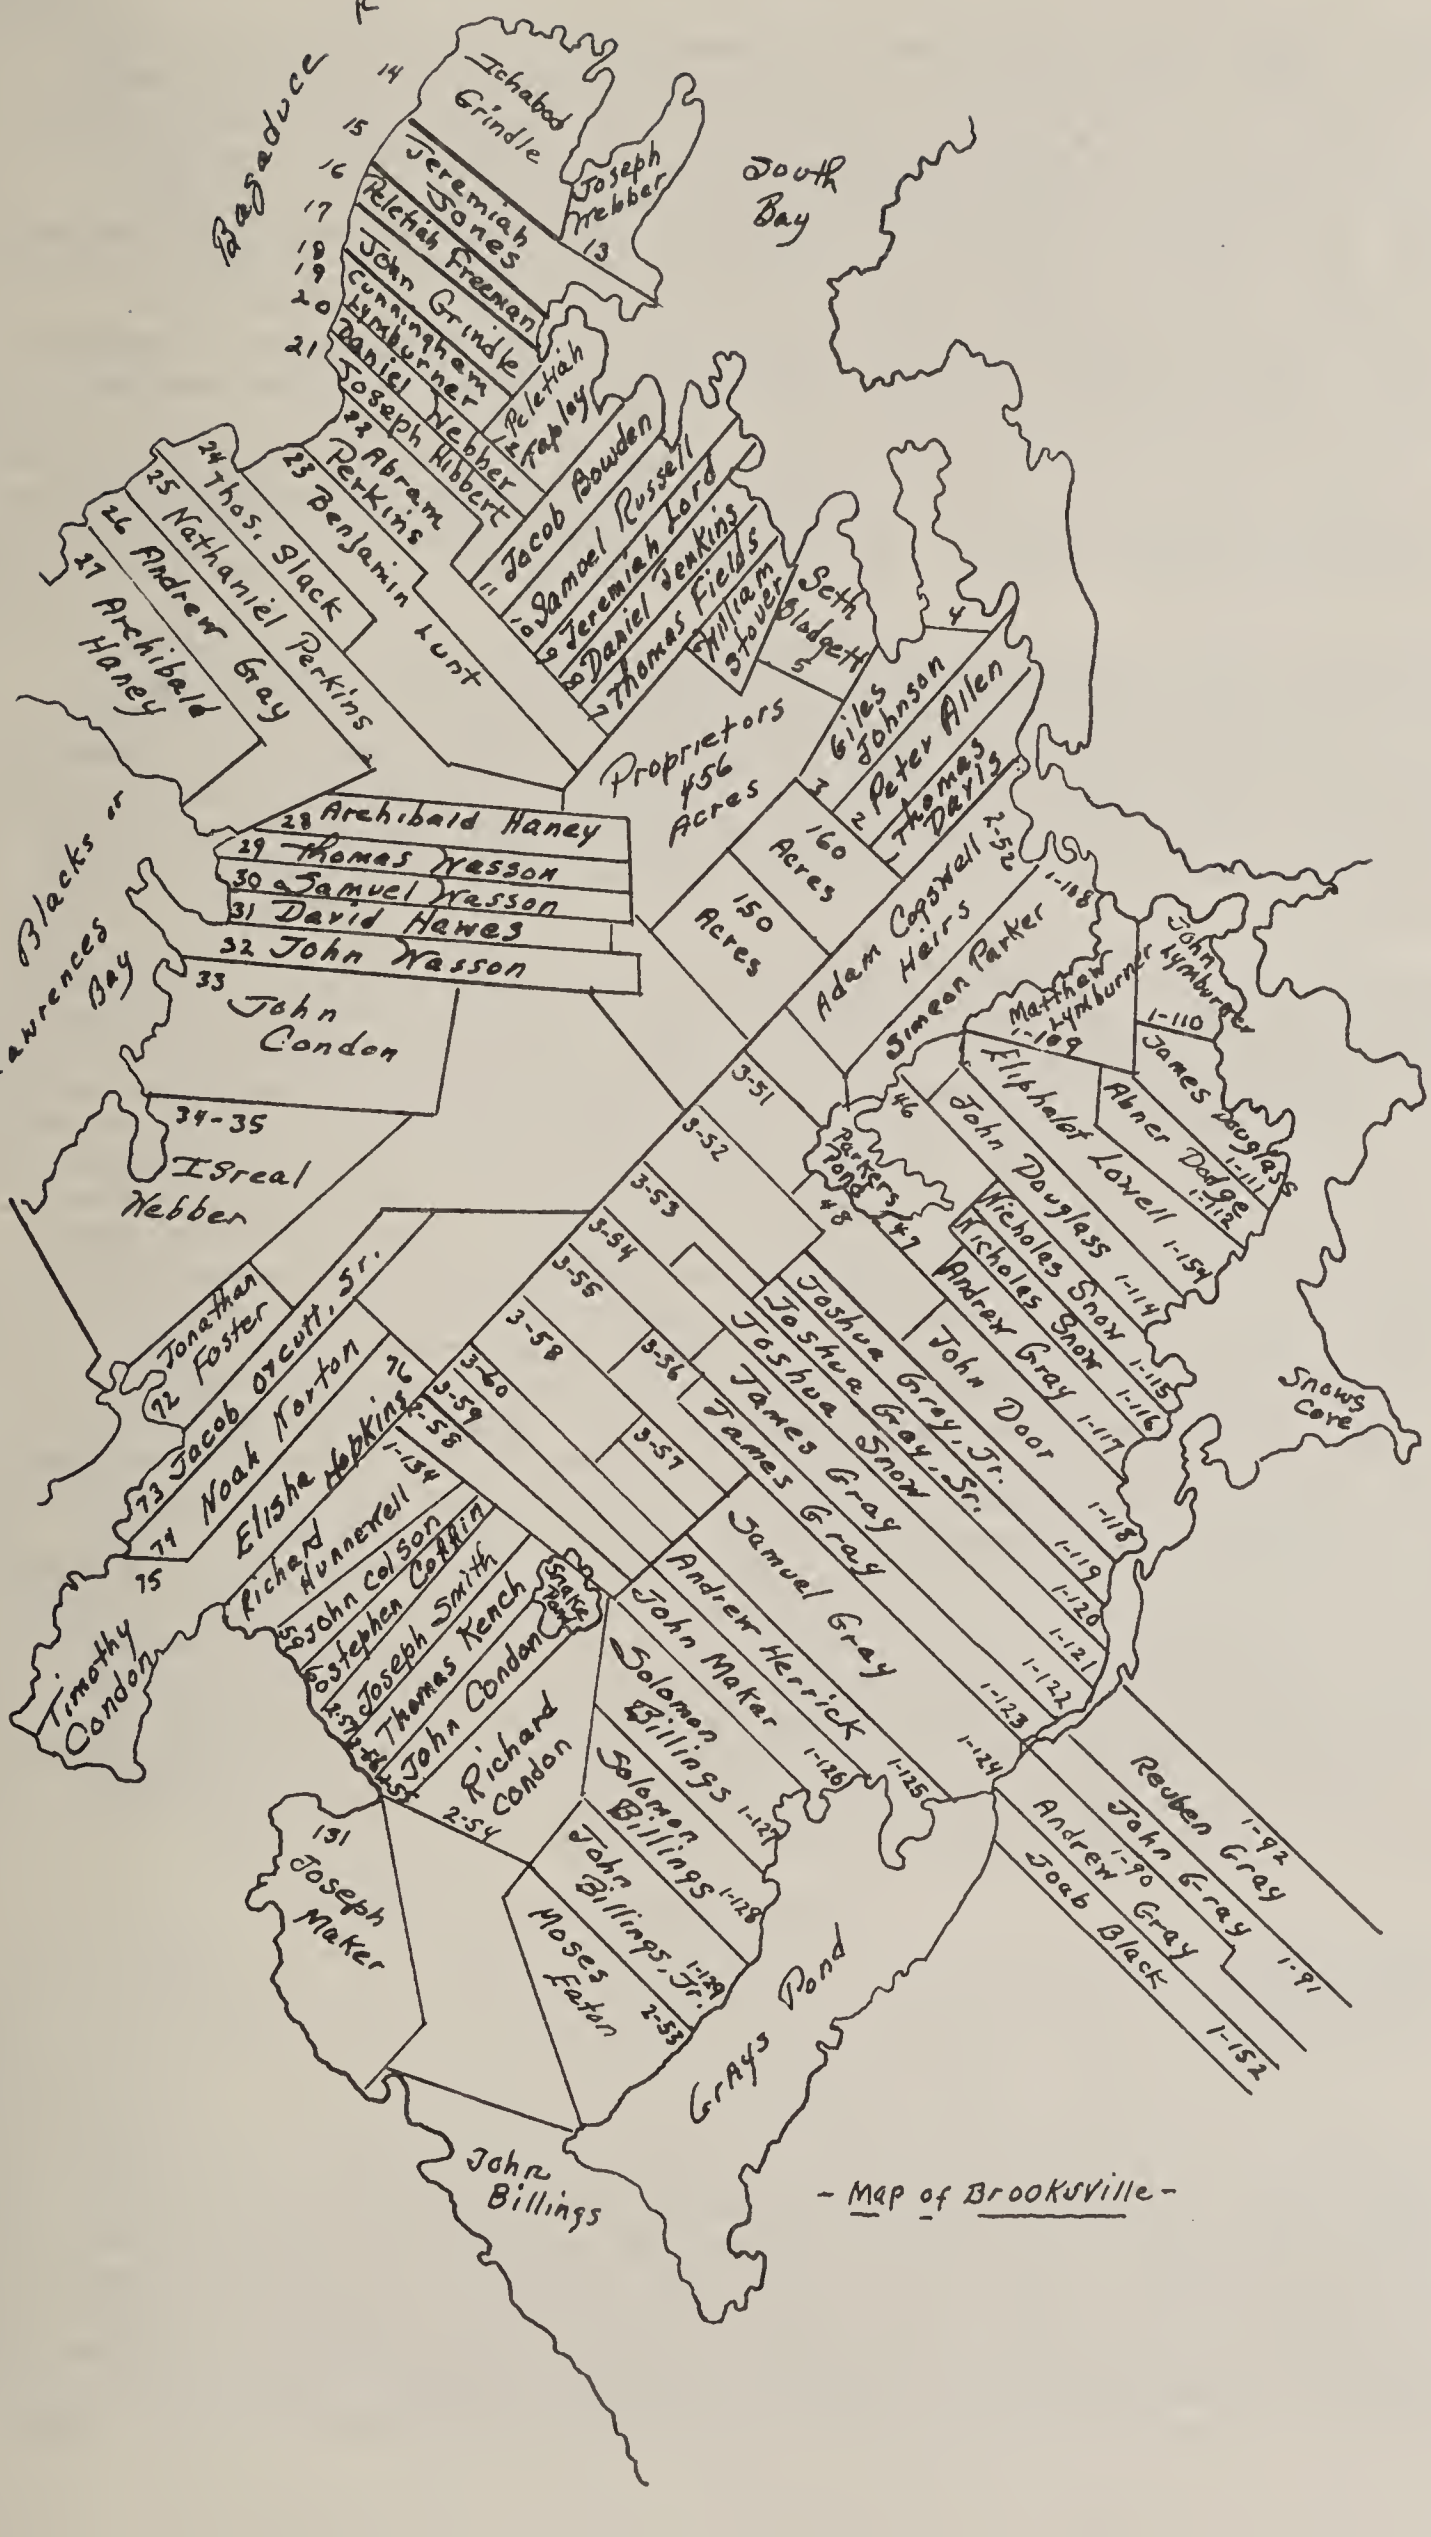
The sketch of the Peninsula of Castine, shown below, is roughly traced from Peters' Plan of Penobscot from which the dividing lines between the lots and figures showing his statement of their dimensions in acres and rods are also copied. The names are taken from a document published in the Ellsworth American some years ago, probably taken from the Massachusetts Archives. It has not been learned in what way the titles of the first settlers were secured nor where the record of such title exists.



Perhaps land titles were never legally cleared, for about 1768 the Grays moved up-river and settled on both sides of the Bagaduce River and at the outlet of Walkers Pond in Sedgwick, part of which became the town of Brooksville. The following map shows the location of the earliest Gray settlers in Sedgwick and Brooksville.



- Map of Brooksville -

Capt. Thomas Goldthwait was in command of Fort Pownall for many years. He wrote to Gov. Hutchinson Mar. 7, 1770 regarding the settlers: "They are in general a resolute hardy people who fear neither hunger nor cold and in most respects are well qualified to go upon any military service. They may also in time become good settlers. They have one excellent way in bringing up their children. I suppose necessity at first led them to it. Out of 800 families which I suppose there are at least between this and St. Croix, I believe there isn't forty children under 9 years old that has a shoe or stocking on all winter and who find no inconvenience from it tho they are exposed as much as if they had."

In 1781 Joshua Gray sold his land lying in what is now Brooksville to his son Joshua, Jr. The deed, an exceedingly quaint and interesting document, follows:

Know all men by these Presents that I Joshua Gray of a Place Called Numbar fore at the head of Majerbigwaduce Rivar yeoman Do for and in Consideration of the Sum of one hundred and thorty Pounds hallafax Corencey to me in hand Paid by Joshua Gray Juner of a Place Called Numbar fore yeoman the Reseipt whareof I Do hereby acknowledge have therefore Given Granted Bargined & Sold a Sarting tract of Land Said Land Lies at the head of Majerbigwaduce Rivar Buted and Bounded as followeth.

"This old deed, stained and frayed by the vicissitudes of nearly a century and a quarter, was found among the papers of John Lee, and presented to your historian by Mr. John Lee of Bucksport, the grandson of him who bought so much land around the Bagaduce. The wavering, uncertain strokes that constitute 'his mark' upon this instrument are such as one would ascribe to a very aged and infirm person; and are the only absolutely certain product of the hand of Joshua Gray now known."[5]

"On Nov. 21, 1789, Joshua Gray, Jr. sold his farm which is described as follows: 'Land in Sedgwick, on the west side of the southern branch of Majorbigwaduce River. Beginning at the northeast of a lot of land that was sometime since sold by Joshua Snow to Samuel Wheelright, thence running northerly as the shore runs about one hundred and sixty rods to the southeast corner of a lot of land owned by and in the possession of John Door, thence running back a northwest course adjoining to the said Door's land on the one side and upon said Wheelright's lot of land upon the other side until two hundred acres is completed, being two lots of land the southernmost of which lots I purchased of my father, Joshua Gray, the other I settled myself.' 'My wife Lydia, was to sign, but did not.' The purchaser was John Lee and the consideration, 'Sixty Pounds Lawful Money to me in hand paid.'"[5]

"The sheet of water now called Walker's Pond was long known as Gray's Pond and is so described in all the early deeds. At its outlet the brothers and their father built a mill, (saw and grist) which, in time they sold, along with much of their land, to Mr. Lee. (Mr. Lee sold this land and mill to John Walker about 1810. Mr. Walker and his family ran the mill for over 100 years as a woolen and carding mill. It later was restored as a saw mill, and in more recent years it was used as a toy factory for the manufacture of educational toys. The structure burned about 1860 and was rebuilt, lasting about another 100 years until it burned again about 1960. It has the distinction of being in continuous operation for the longest period of time of any business in the town of Brooksville.) It is hoped, and is a natural supposition, that whatever the circumstances attending their departure from Majabagaduce, they received for their labor there at least sufficient remuneration to equip the mill at the outlet of Grays pond."[5]

Joshua Gray built his home in the vicinity of the present (1976) Wayne Grindle house on a hill overlooking the head of the Bagaduce River and Walkers Pond. This is on the western side of the river in that part of town then Sedgwick but now included within the limits of Brooksville. He is buried on the slope of a hill above where his house once stood; on the western side of the road which parallels the Bagaduce River, about 7/10 of a mile north of the outlet of Walkers Pond. Others of his family are buried in this little cemetery but their graves are unmarked except for a slight mound or depression or by a rough field stone at head and foot. The place continued to be used for burial purposes until around 1920 and several headstones remain standing. Some graves were destroyed when a gravel pit was permitted to intrude into the cemetery during the mid nineteen hundreds.

What remains is now badly overgrown.

Family recorded at Sedgwick. 3. Rebecca b. abt. 1765-7, prob. Castine, Me. d. prob. before 1850. m. 1st, John Dorr of Sedgwick (Brooksville). mp 2nd, Mar. 19, 1796, Moses Emerson of Sedgwick. (Str) 4. Hannah b. abt. 1765-73, Castine or Sedgwick, Me. m. Timothy Roax, prob. son of Timothy Roax, a Loyalist of Brooksville. Moved to Canada at the close of the Revolution. 5. Lydia b. Dec. 20, 1863, age 87 or 88 yrs., Blue Hill, Me. (1-9) 8. Jeremiah B. (1-20) b. Apr. 29, 1781, Sedgwick, Me. (Str) b. May 18, 1780 (Noyes) d. Nov. 18, 1854, age 74 yrs. 6 m., Deer Isle, Me.

Also recorded with this family is Polly Door b. Mar. 14, 1792 who may be a grandchild, dau. of John Door and Rebecca (Gray) (5). John Door, a pioneer settler of Sedgwick (Brooksville) had two sons under 16 years of age in 1790 and two females in his family. He died about 1795 and his widow mp Mar. 19, 1796 to Moses Emerson of Sedgwick.

Timothy Roax, above was one of several settlers of Brooksville who was called a "squatter" along with Archibald Hainey and Ebenezer Leland. Roax was at Fort Pownall, a French and Indian War Veteran, as was Andrew Gray. Timothy Roax, Jr., was, no doubt, a son of Timothy the Loyalist, who married Hannah Gray, above. He too, was a Loyalist during the Revolution and sought refuge at Fort George during the conflict. He was a member of the Penobscot Associated (Sect. 1-3) Loyalists, and settled in Canada at the close of the war. Stanley Gray says Timothy, Timothy, Jr. and John Roax were all Loyalists and went to St. Andrews in 1783.

The birth dates of Rebecca and Jane were computed from the date of "The Battle of Naskeag" which took place July 20, 1778. The story goes that these two daughters lived, during the Revolution, in the family of a man of Tory proclivities whose home was at what is now W. Brooksville. On one occasion some English soldiers from Castine, who had been raiding the patriot inhabitants at Naskeag, and had secured a large number of cattle, having reached this place at dusk fastened their prizes in the Tory's barnyard, after which they were regaled in his kitchen. At last, sunk in drunken slumber on the floor, they became quiet, when Rebecca, a girl of fourteen, despite the protest of her more timid sister, crept down the stairs, softly made her way to the yard, unfastened and lowered one of the bars and stole back to her room. Soon the uneasy herd found the opening --- with heads and horns made it larger --- broke through, and galloped madly off. Roused from their slumbers by the commotion, the soldiers on discovering the escape of their prizes suspected the girls but they were found to be fast asleep.

The list of children in the above family agrees with that of Stanley Gray's which was given him by A. G. (probably Abner Gray) except Jane and Hannah, supplied by Mrs. Amanda Gray (1902), of Deer Isle. Stanley Gray's record continues, "Mr. Moody Gray says head of this family was known as William, but Mr. G. of Long Pond said it was Andrew. William Cousins says his mother gave name as Lydia Brown which agrees with Falmouth Record of marriage. Both from Brunswick, Recorded Wells, Nov. 20, 1737. Date of birth and death of Jane from "Early Settlers of Bluehill" by R. G. F. Candage, Brookline, Mass. ----- A. G. Said 'Andrew piloted Admirals ship when American fleet came to Castine in Revolution.'"

A letter from Miss Clementine Gray of S. Deer Isle, Aug. 8, 1902 to Stanley Gray reads:

"After the death of my father's grandmother my grandfather (Jeremiah B.) moved to Deer Isle, his father (Andrew) making his home with a daughter of the family. After awhile he came to Deer Isle to visit grandfather and remained with him until his (Andrew's) death some seven or eight years after. He is buried in the old Church yard at North West Harbor. The date of his death I do not know."

"Just here, I must make a correction. Grandfather's eldest son was named Jeremiah and it was after his birth that they moved from Brooksville to Deer Isle."

(Sect. 1-4) "It was his (Jeremiah's) third son who was named William. He died in 1881, age 75, which would make the year of his birth 1806; and his grandfather lived until he the grandchild, was some five or six years old, the grandfather's death must have occured not far from 1810 or 1812."

In his speech given at the Gray Family Reunion Aug. 19, 1903, Mr. Gray stated:

"Andrew settled south of John (his brother) on the east side of the pond and the site of his house too, is easily distinguished. Selling his farm in 1788, to John Lee, he appears to have taken another lot on the west side, some distance down the river, his land being bounded on the south by John Door's and on the north by that of Nicholas Snow. (Lot # 1-117, Carleton Plan) This lot also he sold to Lee in 1792. Besides his lot on the east side, he sold, to John Lee, Oct. 26, 1788, 'Land situated on the South side of the River and Harbor, and bounded as follows; --- South on land of Archibald Henney, and north on land of Nathaniel Perkins, fronting on the water seventy rods, and running back a Southeast course till one hundred acres is completed." The consideration was fifteen pounds. This was at what is now West Brooksville." (Lot # 26, Peters Plan)

"Sewell Gray, of Columbia Falls, a grandson of William, gave the record of the Addison family of Grays in 1891. Abigail was then living. (Mrs. Tracy)"

"These Grays are descended from William Gray, who came to what is now Columbia Falls, about 98 years ago, being then 18 years old. He was accompanied by a brother, Andrew, who did not remain long. They are supposed to have come from the vicinity of the Penobscot River, and Seward (Sewell?) Gray thinks he has heard his grandfather, the above William, speak of Sedgwick."

The Census of 1850, Addison, gives William Gray age 76 living with the family of his son Asa B. Gray whose record follows.

Another record without verification states there was a daughter Rebecca who married John Gray, son of Reuben Gray and Abigail (Black). "John's farm was next to Reuben's though he seems at one time to have lived on that occupied by Andrew Herrick, and the foundations of the house said to have been his show very plainly in the rocky pasture opposite, and some rods away from the Brooksville schoolhouse. (Probably Blacks Corner schoolhouse, Blacks Corner, Sedgwick, intended.) His lot on the east side was sold to John Lee, July 16, 1788, the consideration being 'sixty-six pounds lawful money.'" (From Stanley Gray's address at the Gray reunion of 1903)

John Gray was a Sergeant in Capt. William Reed's Co., enlisting Aug. 19, 1777 and discharged Sept. 28, 1777, service 1 m. 10 d. The Company was ordered out by Col. Jonathan Buck for service at Machias. (Mass. Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War, Vol. 6, p. 774.)

The following material was taken from Vernal Hutchinson's book, A Maine Town in the Civil War:

Newburn, March 20th
Mr. John Webster

Dear Sir

It is with pain that I have to announce to you the death of your brother Charles Gray.

By his good conduct and bravery while with me, he had risen to the rank of Corporal, and had he lived I should have promoted him again. He was shot through the body, at the battle of Newburn, and died instantly.

I can speak of him with pleasure, as he was brave and true: a good soldier, and a true friend.

He is buried here. His effects I shall send home at the earliest opportunity.

Tell his sister and mother that I sympathize with them deeply.

He was one that I took a particular interest in and we were personal friends.

If I shall be spared to return home, I shall see his friends myself -

Yours Truly
E. A. P. Brewster
Captain Commanding Co. A
23rd Reg. M. V.

Please send this notice for publication to any paper you may take -

Died

At the battle of Newburn, Mar. 14th

Corp. Charles Gray of Co. A. 23rd Reg. Mass. Vol.

He was shot through the body while in action, and died immediately. His last words were, 'We will never give up.'

A few minutes before, he had borne off in his arms his wounded companion, through the thickest of fire. He returned to fall himself. He rests with many others, beneath the hard-won soil of North Carolina. p. 41-42.

....."Charles Gray's personal effects came home in the mail. (Sect. 2-9) Trembling hands undid the package. Eyes were dim with tears as each pitiful little relic was examined. There was his hat, gaudily decorated in braid by his own hand. There was a large promotion certificate, carefully folded, printed on heavy paper. It stated, in part: 'Know ye, that reposing special trust and confidence in the Valor, Fidelity, and abilities of Charles H. Gray, I do hereby appoint him a Corporal in the 23rd Reg. Mass. Vols., Co. A, to rank as such from the twenty-ninth day of Nov., 1861.....J. G. Chambers, Adjutant.'

Tucked in among his treasures was a little wooden cartridge box. inside of it was the bullet that had killed him. It was a horrible thing to send home; a battered lump of lead the size of a man's thumb. His mother refused to look at it. They talked of burying it. One of his married sisters, finally, hid it away in the attic of her home. There it was to remain, forgotten, until long after those who gazed at it then had passed away." p. 47. (The bullet is now in the possession of the Deer Isle, Stonington Historical Society, Deer Isle, Me.)

A photograph in the possession of the Society and reproduced in Mr. Hutchinson's book shows what a handsome young man Charles Harris Gray was.

"Deer Isle's first (enlistment in the Civil War from Deer Isle) was Charles Harris Gray, who was on a fishing schooner at Gloucester, Massachusetts, when the news of Sumter came. On the fifteenth of April (1861) he enlisted, for three months, in Company G, Eighth Massachusetts Infantry Regiment, then being formed. His father, Capt. Joseph Gray, lived on the Reach Road, not far from Scott's Landing. The house, joined to a large barn, looked out over the water toward the mainland. There were pasture lands around it, with a garden, an apple orchard, and a hedge of purple lilacs near the house. The family had been large, but only the captain, his wife, and three unmarried girls remained at home. Capt. Gray had followed the sea all his life. He expected his son to do the same."

"Charles had followed the sea, until the war broke out. Shipping out on fishing schooners became his livelihood. He listed his residence as Gloucester; his occupation, mariner; his age twenty-seven years." p. 13-15

(Sect. 2-10) ....."As autumn drew near.....Charles Gray came home, his term with the Eighth Massachusetts served in full. He found his mother nearly frantic with worry. He was her favorite, she had known no peace of mind all the while he had been gone. There had been danger for him on the Banks, of course, but she was used to that: it was a way of life. This war was something different; it frightened her. When he spoke of re-enlisting, she pleaded with him. Finally, against his wishes, he gave his promise not to go back."

"Still in uniform, he called to see his sister Sarah, who had married John Webster and lived nearby. He came into the kitchen. He sat down. Sarah's little six-year-old daughter Clara, whom Charles had nicknamed 'Tookie', studied his long hair for a while. 'I thought I had never seen such beautiful curls,' she remembered. Getting a dish of water and a comb, she stood up on a chair behind him to comb it. Sarah, when she noticed what the child was doing, quickly took the dish away from her and slapped her hands. But Charles only laughed."

'Now you leave Tookie alone,' he said.

"More than eight decades later, that incident was to remain undimmed in Clara Webster's memory."

"Remaining at home while others went to war was something Charles could not endure. So he shipped out again on a local fishing schooner. He arrived in Boston just as the Twenty-third Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers was being formed. Despite his promise to his mother, he could not resist the call to arms. He enlisted, along with other members of the crew.....in Company A, on August 27, twenty-six days after being mustered out of the Eighth Massachusetts."

"Knowing his mother would be worried, he listed John Webster as next of kin, to be notified in case he became a casualty. Then, happy again, proud in his new uniform, he headed South....." p. 29-30.

....."With misgivings, John Webster opened a letter that had been franked by the U. S. Army Post Office. It was addressed to John B. Webster, Deer Island, Maine, in a bold, clear, masculine hand, unlike the fine, even writing of Charles Gray. From some of the other Scott's Landing boys, maybe.....from Sam Holden.....or Andrew Small....."

She was born Sept. 17, 1836, daughter of Nathan Closson, veteran of the War of 1812 who lived to be 88 years old. He entered the army at the age of 18 and was in the thick of the fighting in the Lake Erie section. When he failed to return to his home after the war he was given up for dead, and funeral services were held for him at Sedgwick, but a stranger who attended the services told Nathan's father, Josiah Closson that he had heard the young man was alive and well and was employed in Connecticut. Josiah Closson went to Connecticut where he found his son and brought him back to Sedgwick." (Bangor Daily News).

"Visited farm Aug. 20, 1936, now owned by John A. Gray ----- burial place covered by thorn, sweet fern, etc. No memorial stones and graves difficult to distinguish. The Sedgwick records, in at least one place, corrupt this family name to Jotham Gray.

(Sect. 2-75) Stanley Gray wrote: "Leonard I. Gray said Aug., 1902 that Joshua Gray lived on Cunningham Ridge (now called Sedgwick Ridge, 1975). He owned much land and was well-to-do. He was a very large man. Ichabod Grindle, who was a small man, owned land adjoining and they used to quarrel and Gray would beat Grindle, who would then sue him and resulting fines stripped Gray very largely of his property.

Joanna P. Grindle said Aug., 1902 that Joshua was the father of Robert Gray, who lived at Toddy Pond."

Pension records of the War of 1812 show that Joshua S. Gray served as a private in Capt. Phineas Emerson's Co. of Mass. Militia. Served one day in the Battle of Hampden.

2-74 ROBERT GRAY (6) Joshua (5) John (4) Joshua (3) b. abt. 1799 d. Nov. 17, 1875, age 75 yrs. 3 m. (Cem.) Buried at N. Penobscot, son of Joshua Gray (5) and Elizabeth. Farmer of N. Penobscot, Me. ABIGAIL H. (_____-WITHAM), his wife b. Mar. 31, 1797, d. N. Penobscot, Me. Mar. 16, 1881 (Cem.) Resided at Castine, Me. while m. to Witham. Ch. 1. Robert (Probably) m. 1st, Ulmer m. 2nd, Abigail A. (Gray) Nov., 1863 (Ptr).

About the only thing that is known with certainty about this family is that they did exist and that Robert and his wife lived at N. Penobscot. There seems to be no documentary proof that Robert Gray was the son of Joshua and Elizabeth, but placing him as such has been based on the statement by Joanna P. Grindle who told Stanley Gray in August, 1902 that this was the case. See 2-75.

A discussion follows:

We know that Abigail H. had a child by Witham, viz MARY ANN, b. Castine, d. after 1875 (will of Robert and death of Alice) who m. Manley (prob. John Manley) Leach. She was living in 1875. We know that Mary Ann and Manley Leach had ch. Alice M. Leach b. abt. 1843 d. 1868 who m. and divorced Abner K. Gray. (See 3-299) It is very probable they had a daughter MARY ANN who d. Nov. 11, 1851, age 17 yrs. 10 m. The cemetery stone (N. Penobscot) identifies her as "daughterof John M. and Mary Leach." Based on names and ages it seems likely they had a daughter AGATHA LEACH who m. Charles Gray (7) Alexander M. (6) Adam (5) Reuben (4) Joshua (3). (S. Gray manuscript) See 3-254.

We know that Abigail H. had a daughter, probably by Witham but possibly by Robert Gray, named AGATHA B. (U or H) who m. _____ LAMPHER. She was living 1875 (will of Robert) but was widowed or divorced at that time. She is mentioned ahead of Mary Ann in the will, hence probably was older. This would indicate her father was Witham.

Based on dates and ages it is probable that the following ch., whose names appear on the cemetery stone are ch. of Agatha and _____ Lampher.

AGATHA	b. 1834	d. Mar. 29, 1842
EVALINE	b. 1836	d. Apr. 5, 1842
ITHIEL	b. 1841	d. Nov. 16, 1842

It is not likely that Abigail H. would have named a second child AGATHA while the 1st AGATHA was still living.

Based on Robert's will it seems probable that Abigail H. had a son by Witham. It appears that this son married and had a son named Robert Lester, named in Robert's will, and a minor in 1875. Apparently Robert Lester's father was dead by 1875 inasmuch as he was not mentioned in the will.

(Sect. 2-77) The marriage of a Robert Gray to Abigail A. (Gray) at Penobscot on Nov., 1863 indicates the possibility that Robert and Abigail H. had a son Robert, however, there is only the repetition of the name, and the fact that we have not placed the second Robert any where else, to go on. It certainly was not the 2nd marriage of the senior Robert because Abigail H. was still with him in C/1870 and is clearly named in his will in 1875.

The fact that Robert named ABBIE ULMER GRINDLE in his will indicates the probability (1) that Robert and Abigail H. had a daughter named Florence U. Gray or (2) that the son, Robert, had married before, and had had a child named Florence U. (Gray). This is based on the fact that the Abbie Ulmer Grindle named in the will was a daughter of Pearl Grindle and Florence U. (Gray). (Ellsworth American). Abbie Almer (Grindle) was under 18 years of age in 1875.

A Charles Ulmer Gray of Sedgwick who m. Sarah L. (Fogg) of Sedgwick May 24, 1875 appears to have been a brother to the Florence U. Gray mentioned above, based on relative ages and place of residence. This makes one inclined to believe that Robert and Abigail H. did in fact have a son Robert and that he probably m. 1st an Ulmer and m. 2nd, Abigail A. (Gray).

The following has been taken in part from the Bangor Daily News item by Buxton, dated 1937 or 38 and may relate to John Gray (5).

According to tradition, John Gray married Sally Perkins, daughter of one of the earliest pioneers of Castine, Me. The tradition involves one Hatevil Colson, the eccentric veteran of the Revolutionary War who was very much in love with Sally. He, being disappointed with life because she married John Gray, is said to have become a wanderer about the countryside.

Sally, a dark haired, flirtatious girl, spurned his love making and married Gray, a young trapper. The ceremony was performed by the chaplain at Fort Pownall.

Sometime later John was killed by a party of French and Indian raiders who carried Sally into captivity.

Hatevil followed them to Canada and came upon the raiding party close to the Canadian border. At night he stole upon the party and found Sally lying bound hand and foot under a rude shelter of spruce boughs. "Wriggling into camp like a snake, Hatevil silently strangled a big Iroquois, moved softly to a sleeping Frenchman and brained him with his tomahawk and then knifed another Indian as the latter was awakened." He soon made quick work of the others in the party.

Finding his former sweetheart ill and exhausted by her terror and privation he proceeded with her on the long journey back to Penobscot, but Sally died on the journey.

"Hatevil buried her in some grassy glade near a swift running stream, and built a cairn over her grave."

The Penobscot Vital Records shows that Hatevil Colson and Elizabeth published intentions of marriage May 4, 1802 and were married soon after.

The above story indicates that the affair with Sally Perkins took place at about the time, or just prior to the Revolution. It must be assumed that this love affair was an earlier one than 1802. However, many unfounded traditions prevail concerning the Colson family, and it is impossible to accurately determine fact from fancy.

Never-the-less, there seems to be no information of a definite nature concerning an early John Gray, and it just could be that this story relates to John, son of John Gray and Hannah (Getchell).

Andrew Herrick, Jr. Feb. 12, 1800. However, he m. Mary Thomas of Northport, Me. Jan. 31, 1801, possible that she was his 2nd wife. Believe this Sally was the daughter of James Gray and Elizabeth (Howard). The C/1850, Brooksville, Me. reveals that Sally Haney, 67, was residing with John and Rachel Gray at Cape Rosier. At the same date Archibald Haney was residing at Cape Rosier with Susan Rian. John Gray was a nephew, on the Howard side, to Sarah Haney.

From the address of Stanley D. Gray, 1903 at the Gray Family reunion:

.....It is family tradition that Reuben Gray lived for a time in the Old French Fort, and that his son Reuben was born, probably in 1763, in the dwelling formerly occupied by Baron Castin. (Reuben Gray is the 3rd family to claim residence in the Old French Fort at Castine, the others being Staples and Stover. It is claimed by some that William Staples b. 1758, was the first white person of English parents born east of the Penobscot River. The Grays, however, claim that Reuben Gray, son of Reuben, was the first. The Brooksville Vital records shows that William Stover has the same honor, but a record has been found showing that Mr. Stover was born in York, Me., and doubtless if the records were searched, it would be found that William Staples was probably born at Fort Pownall, not the old French Fort.) Many years had passed since the latter left the place; though according to some authorities one of his sons had been at Majabagaduce but a few years before the coming of English settlers.

Gov. Pownall visited the peninsula in 1759 and found 'the ruins of a French settlement, which from the site and nature of the houses, and the remains of fields and orchards, had once been a pleasant habitation.' From this it would seem possible that Reuben Gray was really born in the house.....

A grandson of Reuben, son of the soldier Reuben, recalls the following incident related by his grandfather, which indicates that the wives of some of the soldiers were at Fort Pownall.

'One evening his mother went a short distance outside of the fort for the purpose of milking her cow and on her way back she was seized by an Indian in ambush, but being a very powerful woman she dragged the savage to the gate and entered with the loss of her skirts. That seemed to be the signal for a general attack and the (Sect. 3-4) fort was instantly surrounded by savages, but after a severe contest which lasted several hours the Indians were forced to retire with the loss of several of their number.'

There is a persistent tradition that Reuben was wounded sometime during his military service. One account is that he was at Majabagaduce on a scouting expedition, and stumbling down a bank his gun was discharged. Another is that the accident occurred at the fort, -- that he was a sentry posted on the top of the block house, and on being relieved and starting to descend fell down the stairs discharging his gun, --- and that he was taken in a whaleboat to 'Old York' for treatment.

It is told that during the Revolution he had a cabin in the woods far back toward the eastern end of his lot, near Black's Pond, to which he and his family used to retire when the English soldiers from Castine came that way raiding the farms of the known or suspected adherents to the patriot cause.

Mr. Gray's manuscript also gives this information :

"Reuben Gray's first log house was on a knoll on Levi Gray's farm, east side of stream forming outlet of Gray's Pond (Walker's) a short distance north of burying ground. Foundation not found. (Aug., 1903) Great boulder near where the Grays camped when exploring region --- brick yard just south of knoll --- say 30 yards, where Reuben and son made brick. His second log house, in which Mr. Cousins was born, stood near large cellar of house recently burned."

"Tradition that Hatevil Colson came to second log house just before their moving to third house and said, 'In the name of God, leave this house' - and that night the chimney fell."

According to the Bangor Historical Magazine Vol 8, p. 8, Reuben Gray (4) sold land at Castine to Aaron Banks in 1765. He had two children b. there. (Castine) Mary b. Nov. 4, 1763 and Samuel b. May 8, 1767. He moved to Sedgwick after 1772. Joshua (3) had a lot there (Castine) Dec. 7, 1772.

The following is taken in part from Reminiscenses by Stephen Decatur Gray published in the booklet, Gray Family of Hancock County, 1903, mentioned earlier. The remarks in parenthesis are those of the compilers.

"Reuben Gray was born in what is now the town of Castine, June 3, 1762, in the old Baron de Castin's house, and as he claimed was the first male child of English parentage born east of the Penobscot River."

"His father Reuben came to that place from Fort Point (Fort Pownall) with his brothers. They took up farms where the village of Castine now is. Here they resided for a time but finally left and settled in the vicinity of what is now Walker's Pond at the head of the Bagaduce River, where they lived and died."

"When the war of Independence broke out, Reuben was too young to take any active part, but with other boys used to travel through the woods to Cape Rozier and climb one of the high hills that then, as now, overlooked the surrounding country, and witnessed the fighting going on at Castine between the English and rebels."

"After fighting ceased and the English retained possession of Castine a transport ship arrived from England loaded with supplies and anchored in the river just below the old French fort. Capt. Perry and Thomson hearing of the same conceived the plan of taking and making a prize of her. They accordingly fitted out two whale boats with twelve men each and engaged young Reuben as pilot. Starting from the carrying place on Eggemoggin Reach in the latter part of the night by daylight they arrived at Goose Falls where they concealed their boats and ascended one of the high hills where they could see their coveted prize and all that was going on at Castine. Waiting until the lights disappeared at Castine, they reembarked and with paddles instead of oars, they silently and swiftly propelled their boats through the darkness without moon or stars into the mouth of the river."

"Here everything became expectation for they knew well that a few strokes would bring them alongside of their foe. Every man was armed with a musket and cutlass and each had his work, some to rush on board and strike down the watch on deck, others to secure the companionway, and others to cut the cable and make sail, and as there was a fresh breeze blowing out of the harbor together with a strong ebb tide everything seemed to be favorable for them to accomplish their undertaking. Silently they moved along until a dark object came into view. They diverged one boat to board on the starboard side, the other on the port. No sooner had this move been made then they ascertained that the transport had been hauled alongside the Commodore Mowatt's ship and the hail rang out, 'who goes there?' the answer was, 'Boats, bound up the Penobscot river.' They were called liars and the alarm given."

....."Grandfather said he was a large boy before he saw a sheep or wool of any kind, their clothing being made of tow and (Sect. 3-9) linen and with the aid of wild skins they managed to keep themselves comfortable in winter. He married Miss Sarah Herrick, by whom he had eleven children, Solomon, Benjamin, Abigail, Samuel, Betsy, Patience, Abner, Abner, (should read Stephen, Abner) Andrew, Reuben and Ezra, who all lived to be men and women."

"In politics he was a Democrat and voted at every presidential election from George Washington to James Buchanan. In religion he was a Methodist. His eight sons were also Democrats, taking an active part in the politics of their day. They could hardly be anything else under the vigorous training of their mother, who always designated the opposite part as Torys for whom she always expressed the utmost dislike, not without a cause, for, as she always affirmed, the Torys under the direction of a neighbor by the name of Robinson, made a raid on her father's home, where after seizing and binding him, they proceeded to search the house and take such things as suited them."

"Miss Herrick being then a small girl had received a few days previously very serious and dangerous wounds from falling on a scythe and at the time was lying entirely helpless. Seeing Robinson go to a drawer where she kept some little valuable, she called him by name and requested that the things be not taken. With an oath and a kick he denied his name. The oath was harmless but the kick started the wound bleeding and she nearly bled to death before they would let her father go to her assistance; and it was only through urgent request of one of the gang who appealed to their feelings under like circumstances that this was allowed. Is it any wonder that she carried through life the memory of this bitter night, the cruelty of which she often related to her children and grand children?"

....."After his marriage to Miss Herrick he moved into the northern part of Bluehill." (Lot # 84, 1st Division. Reuben sold it June 9, 1798. Vol. 7, p. 253, Hancock Co. Registry of Deeds, Ellsworth, Me.)

....."He was a man of medium height, deep blue eyes, light hair, broad high forehead and fine cut features. He was very calm and mild as a general thing, but when aroused was quick and active -- a stranger to fear -- and capable of doing much in a short time."

Reuben bought Lot # 102, 1st Division and # 43, 3rd Division in Sedgwick, Me. Sept. 21, 1807. (Vol. 23, p. 103) Also lot # 101, 1st Division, Sedgwick on Sept. 11, 1813. (Vol. 33, p. 139) He sold the W. part to his son Andrew Oct. 30, 1822. (Vol. 45, p. 128)

The following article is from a newsclipping preserved by the Almon Gray family and the original is in his possession. It was apparently published in a paper, the name of which is unknown, about 1857-8. This date is determined by the dates given by Reuben Gray, the subject of the article - b. 1762, and age 96 at the time of the writing. What is written in this article can hardly be disputed, although it does not entirely agree with some traditions and records. This article, so to speak, is from "the horses mouth".

A LEAF FROM THE LIFE OF AN OLD MAN

As many things connected with the past generation are interesting to this, and especially those that are connected with the early history of this country and the revolution, I thought it might not be uninteresting to your readers to give them some of the reminiscenses of Reuben Gray, of Brooksville, Me. Mr. Gray was born the year 1762, being the first white male child born east of the Penobscot river.

Bagaduce at that time contained but one house, that being owned by the Baron de Castine, in which Mr. Gray was born. His father resided at Bagaduce some ten or twelve years, occupying what is now the north part of the village of Castine as a farm: but farming at that time was rather a hard business, farmers being destitute of oxen, horses and farming tools of every kind.

Mr. Gray states that he was quite a boy before he saw a sheep, consequently there was no woolen cloth to be had, and shoes and boots to him were unknown. His dress consisted of tow and linen shirt and breeches in summer, and fur skins in winter.

His father moved from Bagaduce to the head of Southern Bay, and settled in what is now the town of Sedgwick. Here they resided till the breaking out of the revolution. Being too young at that time to enter the army, he was prevented from participating in the stirring events of the times; yet he remained not entirely idle, being called upon to go against the tories. One of these excursions I think worth relating. While the English were in possession of Castine, the captains of two privateer boats got news of certain English officers resorting to one Mathew Lymbener's, a tory, for the purpose of having a jovial time, and as there was a bounty on English captains, Perry and Thomson resolved to make them their prisoners. They employed Mr. Gray as pilot, and started from Sedgwick, intending to reach the mouth of Castine river by dark, then continue up the southern bay and surprise the officers and take them prisoners. But when they arrived at the mouth of the river they landed on Nautilus island for the purpose of waiting till dark that they might pass the Commodore's ship which lay in the stream; but on reviewing the harbor they espied a sloop laden with supplies for the English army lying at anchor below Commodore Moett, being prevented from getting up to the town by head wind. (Sect. 3-11) On making this discovery they resolved to abandon their first project, and if possible make the sloop a prize. They waited till the moon had gone down when they again embarked, and noiselessly proceeded up the harbor, propelling their boats by paddles. In the meantime an old Tory by the name of Grindle got wind that the boats were on the scent and that mischief was intended at some point, and informed the officers at Lymbener's. They returned to Castine and gave the alarm. The captain of the sloop, feeling that he might be an object of desire, dropped his craft alongside the Commodore -- a movement unknown to the boats. They proceeded till they made what th- ------ ---- ---o (?) sed to be the object of their search, it being so dark that they were unable to tell that there was more than one vessel, when they separated. Thomson and his men were to board on the larboard, and Perry on the starboard side. They proceeded till within a few feet of her side, when they were hailed by the watch of the Comodore's ship as to who they were and where bound. They replied that they were boats from the Penobscot river. They were called liars. The matches were lighted and applied, and in an instant her sides were in a blaze of fire, but being too near for the guns to bear, the balls passed harmlessly over their heads. Captain Perry retreated, but Thomson being unperceived, gave them a volley of musketry, and made good his retreat. The enemy continued to fire for some time, but owing to the darkness of the night none of their shot took effect. They landed again on Nautilus island, and cut adrift a raft of logs belonging to the English, after which they made their way back.

Mr. Gray's memory of the revolution is very good, and he will often relate things that took place at that time very accurately. An anecdote I have often heard him relate I think worthy of print.

During the siege at Castine, and while the Americans held the battery on Nautilus island, an old man by the name of Colson visited the battery. After standing and seeing the firing go on for sometime, he addressed the commander -- "Sir," said the old man, "I should like to elevate one of those guns." The commander looked at him with some surprise and replied, "Why, old Daddy, did you ever fire a cannon?" "Faith," replied the old man, "I have seen one." Permit was given, the piece was loaded and elevated, the match applied, while the officer stood by to see the effect of the shot. The ball sped on its way but fell short of its work. "A good shot," exclaimed the officer. "Try her again." The piece was again loaded, the match again applied, and away went the ball, but not to fall short this time, but to enter one side of the enemy's vessel and out of the other. He was a dead shot, having been a gunner in the old French and Indian war.

Mr. Gray after the revolution married Miss Sarah G. Herrick, by whom he had thirteen children - ten boys and three girls. Eight of the boys lived to be men, married and had families, which now amount to 75, and is the third generation. There are 200 of the fourth - of the fifth, ten, making the sum total, 296, among which there are fifty legal voters, who gave in their votes November last, (Sect. 3-12) with the exception of two, for James Buchanan, together with the old gentleman, who has attended every Presidential election that has ever been held in the U. States, and given his vote for what he considers a democratic candidate from George Washington to James Buchanan. Mr. Gray, although 96 years of age, walked six miles in the storm to vote for James Buchanan.

Mr. Gray's memory of his early life is remarkably good, and if there is any one that wishes to see the old gentleman they will find him at his residence in Brooksville, one mile from the village of Castine on the opposite side of the river, where he will entertain them by relating some of the incidents, hardships and dangers encountered by the first settlers of the country and during the revolution, and also of some bear hunts, which for firmness and daring equal the famous wolf story of General Putnam.

Com.

From a Newspaper article by Buxton, Bangor Daily News, 1938, Mrs. Vinton Gray of South Penobscot tells of strange phenomenon seen by her ancestors when bay settlements were young:

"A paralysis of superstitious fear gripped the early settlers of the Penobscot bay region in the latter part of the eighteenth century when for several successive nights the sky and snow-clad hills and plains became as red as blood."*

"Settlers huddled fearfully in their cabins for the duration of this weird phenomenon, expecting that any minute would bring about a crashing end of the world."

"The religious prayed fervently that they be spared from death, and even strong, matter-of-fact men who had little belief in the supernatural were silent and grim. Small children whimpered their fear and clung to the skirts of their trembling mothers, and dogs crouched close to crude fireplaces with bristling hair. People dared not sleep, and kept all-night vigils, awaiting they knew not what. The eery cry of a wolf would cause the watchers to huddle closer together. Indians in the vicinity refused to leave their wigwams, declaring that the Great Spirit was angry, and was preparing a terrible punishment for all mortals on earth."

"I heard the story of this long ago phenomenon from the lips of Mrs. Vinton Gray, one of the pioneers of Penobscot, who served as a pilot in an attack on a British ship near Castine in the Revolution, and who later became famed as a mighty bear hunter. (Apparently the article became somewhat mixed up at this point, for this statement refers to Reuben Gray, the soldier.)

"In my opinion Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Gray must be included among Maine's unusual people. Both are direct descendants of those fighting Grays who came from Massachusetts to Fort Pownal, Cape Jellison as enlisted soldiers in 1758. (Not from Massachusetts, but from Southern Maine.) At the completion of their enlistment they took (Sect. 3-13) over land grants in Castine and Penobscot. Their descendants are now legion in Castine, Penobscot, Sedgwick, the Brooksvilles, Prospect and Deer Isle. Both Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Gray are veritable storehouses of pioneer lore which has come to them by word of mouth down through the generations of the historic Gray family which has produced many noted men, including sea captains, warriors, business men, physicians and educators."

"Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Gray live on a prosperous farm in South Penobscot overlooking the headquarters of the Bagaduce river, and this charming country served as the stage for the enactment of glamorous and romantic events in which their ancestors played leading roles before the founding of the Republic. Not far away are the graves of many of the early Grays who stubbornly fought the British during the Revolution, and to them these ancestors are still living personalities."

"Mrs. Gray was born in Sedgwick, the daughter of Sullivan Staples, a farmer and a shipbuilder." (See 3-6)

"My maternal grandfather, she said, was John Staples of Stockton Springs, who was a ship carpenter, and helped build many vessels in Stockton, Sandy Point, Castine, Bluehill, and Brooksville. It was while grandfather was working in Brooksville that he began to woo my grandmother, Abigail Gray of Sedgwick. Her parents were opposed to the match and wouldn't permit Grandfather Staples to come to the house. Grandfather was undaunted, and courted grandmother when she went to the barn to do the milking. It is likely that he helped her to milk the cows, and it is probable that those milkings were of long duration."

"Yes grandfather must have had a hard time with his courtship, for Abigail was the daughter of Reuben and Sarah Herrick Gray, early settlers, who were stubborn in their likes and dislikes. But in the end true love triumphed, and John Staples and Abigail were married."

....."Grandmother Staples was a very remarkable woman, living to the age of 97, and retaining her clear memory to the end. She died 50 years ago. I shiver even now when I recall the stories she told me of those bloody nights when the sky was blood red, and the reflection of dyed snow and the thick ice on the bay a deep vermillion. It had been an unusually cold winter with deep drifting snow, and sub-zero temperatures. It was so cold that the trees in the forest crackled like musketry, and deer and other wild animals huddled in protected forest glades. The early settlers had difficulty in getting in their wood because of the severe cold, and larders ran short of wild meat because the frigid weather would not permit much hunting."

"Then came the nights when the sky became a deep red, and cast a weird pall of scarlet over the landscape, giving the world the appearance (Sect. 3-14) of an inferno. It was likely that the phenomenon was caused by an unusual display of the Northern Lights, but in those days superstition ran rife, and the early settlers looked upon it as a visitation of the supernatural. They were demoralized by fear until the phenomenon ceased."

.....Grandmother told me that in those days the settlers did not have lanterns, and used pine knots to light their way at night. Many a time she said she walked down the road with a flaming pine knot, and could hear bears and wolves growling in the nearby woods."

"Mr. and Mrs. Gray were married 42 years ago in Brooksville. Mr. Gray was born Nov. 1, 1870, the son of Robert B. Gray, a farmer and brickyard worker. In his younger days Mr. Gray engaged in coasting on Penobscot bay, and between St. John and Boston."

"I made my first voyage, he said, on the schooner Diadem, skippered by Captain Murray Gray. Later Captain Gray was drowned when he was knocked into the water by a boom while his vessel was passing Cape Rosier. (See 3-65) For several years I owned and skippered the bay coaster Gypsy, and since leaving the water I have engaged in farming and carpentering. In the old days there were several sources of revenue in this neck of the woods. There were a number of shipyards, and brickyards, and the farmers made good money selling firewood to the lime kilns in Rockland. Grand Banks fishing was at its peak then, and scores of men shipped on fishing vessels at good wages."....

*This natural phenomenon which took place on May 19, 1780, is referred to as the "Dark Day", at which time a lighted candle was required at noon for reading and the night was thrice dark and awesome. The superstitious saw in it the frowning of Providence, but it was probably due to forest fires in Maine or New Hampshire combined with a peculiar atmospheric condition. (Wheeler's History of Castine, Me.) In October of that year there was a total eclipse of the sun which probably only added to their fears. In January of the same year it was intensly cold and Penobscot Bay was frozen from its mouth to many miles at sea, and persons were able to pass to the opposite shore and to the islands of the Penobscot on the ice.

"Solomon Gray was of medium height, light complexion and good features. He was a Baptist in religion, democrat in politics, a farmer and millman by occupation. Steady and industrious in his habits he aspired to make his home pleasant and its inmates happy. In this he was successful, always making a good living and leaving quite a little for his family. He spent the most of his time at home cultivating and improving his farm, and operating his sawmill, located at the outlet of Camp Stream, W. Sedgwick, Me. He was quite interested in the affairs of the country but took no active part, other than to vote for his favorite candidate. From Reminiscenses by Stephen Decatur Gray:

Benjamin Gray had a firm determination to go ahead -- would call no man master and was better fitted to lead than to be lead. Always on the lookout for financial gain however poor the opportunity, he together with his brother Andrew, engaged in land-buying and ship-building, soon outstripping the rest of the family in this respect. He was a fine looking man. He served his town in many ways and was once sent by his district to represent them in the State Legislature. In his early manhood he was a Methodist, but became a Universalist in later years.

In an article published in the Ellsworth American Apr. 27, 1972 by Francis W. Hatch, "I Think We'd Better Quill Her", the following story is related by Dr. Philip Babcock of Castine regarding Dr. David B. Gray. When asked by Mr. Hatch if it had been common practice, in 1918, for doctors to avail themselves of the reassurance which comes through consultation, Dr. Babcock said, "In hard cases, of course", and recalled a case in Brooksville which obviously had happened before 1918, since "Dr. Dave" died eighteen years before.

"Dr. Franklin Farrow of Brooksville, ----- faces a problem. One of his maternity patients was running dangerously overdue for delivery. None of the ordinary inducements had worked. For reassurance he called in Dr. Littlefield from Blue Hill and Dr. Babcock from across the Bagaduce. The visiting doctors arrived and made their own examinations. Dr. Littlefield recommended the use of forceps. Dr. Farrow was violently opposed. The husband, growing worried and impatient, suggested that if these eminent gentlemen could not agree perhaps they had better call in Dr. David Gray. Dr. Gray was a man with a considerable reputation. His methods and his success were based on the use of old fashioned Indian remedies and obscure procedures which the more conservative M. D.'s had not found in their medical school texts."

"Dr. Babcock remembers him as a most impressive man who wore a tail coat beneath a bushy beard. He had an air of solemn dignity about him that was bound to impress his patients and give confidence and authenticity to his decisions."

"Dr. Gray arrived and after making his examination the fourth that the by now discouraged patient had been obliged to endure he joined his colleagues in the parlor. Satisfied with by his examination and secure in his diagnosis, he put it all in a simple question:

"Why don't you quill her?"

"Dr. Babcock, thinking that Gray was directing the question to him and having no knowledge of 'quilling', suggested that Dr. Littlefield do the honors. Dr. Littlefield, equally in ignorance, passed the buck to Dr. Farrow. Finally it was unanimously agreed that Dr. Gray was the man to carry out his own recommendation."

"Very well", said Dr. Gray, and the conference moved to the bedside."

"With the dignity of a Tarrantine chieftain performing a tribal ceremony, the doctor brought forth from an inner pocket the long tail feather of a turkey. He smoothed out the ruffled tip with his finger, holding the instrument of nature in his hand with the grace of a conductor's baton. The patient was too exhausted to take any notice. Watching the rhythm of her breathing, he watched (Sect. 3-53) for an inhalation. As deftly as a surfboarder timing a wave, he inserted the tip of the feather into the patient's nostril, agitating it gently."

"In a reflex of surprise and muscular response she cut loose with an enormous sneeze."

"The natural forces of labor were cut loose from their shackles and a normal birth was under way."

A news item taken from the Belfast Republican Journal of Oct. 7th, 1897 reads as follows:

"Penobscot - Mrs. Augustus I. Grindle, after suffering 18 months with a painful disease and having been pronounced incurable by three of our best physicians, employed Dr. David B. Gray, a graduate from the School of Common Sense. Dr. Gray told her that he could help her, and he did. She had not been able to bear the least amount of weight on her feet for about a year. In six weeks she could stand alone; in two months she could walk out, now she can walk a mile without resting, go up and down stairs and assist in household work." (John A. Gray research)

"Dr. Dave" Gray was a colorful personage in the South Penobscot community for many years. There is no indication that he ever received any formal medical education or training, although it is said that in his youth he spent much time with the local Indians, learning their medicinal lore. However he obtained it, he acquired a sufficiently wide knowledge of medicine, and the skills that go with it, to permit him to function successfully as a general practioner, dispensing herbs and nostrums, and performing minor surgery.

He delivered many of the babies in the community and surrounding areas, and was said to be particularly adept at terminating unwanted pregnancies.

It is said that in his later years Doctor Dave was inclined to draw a bit heavily from the bottle. By the time he had delivered a baby and taken care of the mother, it was not unusual for him to be well along in his cups. In those instances, the men-folks of the family would load the Doctor into his wagon or sleigh, tuck him in well, and head the horse toward home. The horse never failed to take him home safely.

From Reminiscenses by Stephen Decatur Gray:

"Abner Gray was a farmer, but in his younger days followed the sea somewhat. He inherited from his mother a rather impetuous disposition and it was not always prudent to cross him -- the men who could successfully do so being scarce indeed. Yet he was tenderhearted, and generous to a fault. He took great interest in military affairs and rose to the mark of Lieut-Colonel in the Militia of the day. (He held commissions successively as Ensign, Lieutenant, Major, Lieut-Colonel and lastly as Captain of a Company of Calvary. He at one time conducted a granite business at South Brooksville, was owner in part or whole of several small vessels, and held various town offices. First a Methodist, he later became a Universalist.)" The Gray Copper Mine was located near his home at Gray's Head.

William D. (Eaton, penciled in, in the 1860 Census), age 16, a sailor was residing with Abner Gray at this date. It is also penciled in by someone apparently doing research, that he was adopted by Abner Gray.

Stanley D. Gray, son of Abner, was the Gray family historian, the compiler of much of the material incorporated in this work. His material was never published and after his death, it was acquired by the New England Historic and Genealogical Society of Boston, Mass.

Mr. Gray established a scholarship fund, made available by his will, to those of the Gray family who can qualify under certain conditions, conditions which will perpetuate the research of the Hancock County Gray family. Anyone interested in the details can address: Gardner and Gove, Attorneys at Law, 110 Merrimack St., Haverhill, Mass.

From Reminiscenses by Stephen Decatur Gray:

"He (Andrew) possessed a well balanced head but being without the necessary education was debarred from using the world as he otherwise would. He was married when only eighteen, but before he was twenty-five had built a house and barn and an eighth of a large coasting vessel called the Maine, and fourth of another the Cadiz. Notwithstanding his lack of education he was an original and deep thinker, with a quick comprehensive mind. He was a great home body but was always posted on what was going on in the country; always looking on the bright side and hoping for the best he made a success of life."

CAPE ROSIER "We often hear the statement that there is no money in vessels, meaning the small and medium sized coasters employed in carrying freights of various sorts along our coast from Bangor to New York. So persistently do those interested in water craft of the class mentioned, express their disgust with the business as unprofitable, and so few small vessels are built nowadays, that one unacquainted with the facts might suppose that money invested in coasting vessels is simply thrown away. That such is not always the case, we were satisfied by a conversation with one of our Cape "skippers", from whom we obtained the following facts:"

"The schooner Chas. Cooper, sailed by Capt. L. F. Gray, is a craft of 86 tons and carrying 105 M. of lumber. In 1879, the vessel having been rebuilt had cost the owners $2800. From that up to the present time they have received over $3500, and the vessel is in good condition and considered good for five or six years longer without extensive repairs. Capt. Gray has not had unusually good luck, for during this time the Chas. Cooper has been run down and badly damaged, loosing sails and spars and having hull badly stoven, and has been sunk in the Bagaduce river, loaded with brick, while for about five months of each year the vessel has been hauled up. The sum mentioned as received by the owners does not include cost of repairs, but is the net return of the vessel for the past eight years. For two seasons past, Capt. Gray has carried lumber to Mass., for Adams and Co., of Bangor."

Martin Van Buren Gray was the inventor of the Cape Racer, a racing sled very popular in the E. Penobscot Bay area until recent times. Its unique construction made it a swift moving sled. It had no steering bar but was controlled by the movement of the body from one side to the other. Many races were held by young and old by proud owners of the Cape Racer and the winner was allowed to brag about his superior sled.

Many people have built the racer throughout the years and its origin was nearly lost. Perhaps its origin would not be known had not the family of Martin Van Buren Gray recorded the event in the family Bible.

Percy Perkins of Penobscot, patented the racer a few years ago and used to sell his sleds to Sears Roebuck in Boston, but it did not catch on in other places.

From Stanley Gray's address at the Gray Family Reunion in 1903.

"James settled on the west side, his farm abutting on that of Reuben and Andrew, from which it was separated by the stream. His first log house was on the west side of the present highway, and a short distance north of the Post Office. (The Post Office was, until recently, the store of Hollis and Laura Jones. Lot no.1-123. He also owned lot no. 1-122, which adjoined the other.) His frame house still stands, and is (was) occupied by Mr. Albert P. Friend. The.... owner (at the date of Mr. Gray's writing) removed the shaved shingles that formerly covered the walls, but to quite an extent the interior must preserve its original appearance. (This house is now, 1976, owned by Dr. Chester Howe.) James Gray sold 'the northeastern half of the farm whereon I now live,' for sixty pounds, "In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal /together with my wife Elizabeth in token of relinquishing her right of Dower in the said premises/ this 25th day of March, 1794.' But 'my wife Elizabeth' did not sign! Again John Lee was the purchaser. (Around 1830 or so, Samuel B. Babson built a house on this property which in later years was sold to Jerome Tapley who took it down, moved it to Mills Point at West Brooksville where he rebuilt it. For many years it was left in a state of unrepair, and at present is completely restored and occupied.)"

James Gray is said to have been a veteran of the Revolution, but the name is so numerous that no positive identification has been made.

Stanley Gray's manuscript gives: Christopher Gray of Pickering Isle m? May 31, 1840 to Mrs. Phoebe Smith. Probably this is the same as Phebe Eaton who was previously married to a Smith.

The Brooksville, Me. records show: Christopher Gray and Abigail Norton m. Nov. 28, 1833. If this refers to Christopher, above, then it was his 2nd marriage and Phebe, his 3rd.

In 1850, Josiah Brown, carpenter, 47, and Elizabeth Brown, 24, son-in-law and daughter, were residing with them.

The following information concerning the Josiah Gray family is from a letter to Gordon MacKay from Capt. Walter Scott, and published in his newspaper, Island Advantages, Stonington, Me.:

"At present I shall concentrate on Pickerings Island. The first survey of East Penobscot Bay reveals that Samuel Pickering, Sr. was the owner. It was named for his family. In 1823 he sold it to Josiah and Sarah Morey Gray of Brooksville. Mrs. (should read Mr.) Gray's father, Christopher Gray, was a first resident of Castine who lived to be more than 100."

"When the Gray family moved to Pickerings Island, they had a son, Andrew, who was 7. He lived with his parents until he was 14. This isolated life fitted him for a career of hardship. It completely moulded his ideas and he resolved that he would spend the rest of his life for the good of humanity."

"After leaving Pickerings Island he was converted and baptized by Elder Macomber, a baptist minister. Soon after that event he went to sea, a hard life for a boy convert. He was in the Bay of Chelour in the gale of 1851 when 350 sailors lost their lives and he was made a cripple for life. At the age of 19 he married Hannah Howard of Brooksville by whom he had 9 children. Two sons were killed in the Civil War."

"Deacon Gray became connected with the Free Baptist Church in 1867 by joining a church in Otis. He organized 2 other churches. He was known as the sailor-preacher. He died in Ellsworth in 1901."

On the wall of an old shed on the property of Sherman Gray of Cape Rosier, Indian Bar, Brooksville, the following was found during restoration of the old building: Josiah M. Gray d. 1869, age 72 yrs.

In 1870 Sarah Gray, 66, was residing in the household of David Ladd, 21 and Mary A. 26, her son-in-law and daughter. (C/1870).

A note from Mrs. G. Norton, dau. of William Eastman and Hannah (Gray) shows Mercy, dau. of Samuel Gray and Mercy (Watson) as married to Adam Gray. Her list of children check with the above except she did not show George b. Dec. 12, 1786.

From Gray Family of Hancock County 1903, excerpt from Stanley Gray's speech given on that occasion....

"Samuel is buried in the cemetery opposite the church, (Baptist Church at Brooksville Corner - Lakeview Cemetery) and the inscription on the headstone states that he died Apr. 28, 1843, his age being 93, which would make the date of his birth 1750. His farm was on the west side of the pond, at its outlet, and included the land upon which the church and cemetery opposite, are located. (He donated land for a church in 1817. Apparently a church was never built, and some years later the land was sold to Nathaniel Cousins. No record has ever been found showing Cousins ever sold land back (Sect. 5-4) to the church, but he must have made some arrangements, for he later purchased the Samuel Gray property surrounding the present church which was erected in 1834, and dedicated July 4, 1844.) His house, built of logs, stood near the foot of his lot on an elevation overlooking the pond and very near its banks."

"It is related that Samuel's wife, Mercy, did not like living in the house by the pond. She 'heard noises,' and believing it to be haunted. At last he built another near where the church now stands. On tearing down the old house it was discovered that what had been supposed to be a root in the cellar, and had long served for a step, was a thigh bone of a man, probably an Indian; though it is said that a rusty sword was found lying across the breast of the skeleton. Perhaps it was one of Church's men killed when he made his raid upon the Indians here. Or it may have been that of some French voyageur, priest, or soldier, for like enough this was the route of travel from Majabagaduce eastward. Whoever it was the groaning of whose bones disturbed 'Aunt Mercy' he seems to have slumbered quietly since his mortal framework ceased to be put to such unseemly use. May his ghostship rest in peace!"

"Samuel was desired for a pilot by the British at Castine, and to avoid serving them abandoned his home at Gray's Pond. With his family he went first to Owl's Head, (Me.) where a child died. The English learning his whereabouts pursued, and he went to Little River, where he remained until the war closed. His household goods were scattered, his brother James having some. A flax wheel which he buried, was recovered on his return, and is now (was at that time) in the possession of Mr. William Cousins of Brooksville."

JOHN ELLIS GRAY Moved to Rockland, Me. d. bef. 1899. NANCY (HARRIS), his wife m. Nov. 16, 1841, Deer Isle, Me. Both from Deer Isle, Me. when married. b. abt. 1823 d. Oct. 16, 1899, age 76 yrs. 10 m. 8 d. in Rockland, Me. A native of Deer Isle - widow at time of death. Death of wife says he also was a native of Deer Isle. (Belfast Republican Journal) Ch. recorded at Deer Isle, Me. 1. George Ellis b. Dec. 31, 1843 2. Rozilla B. b. Dec. 3, 1845 Ch. b. Winterport, Me.: 3. Arthur William b. July 25, 1852 (S. A.) State archives says son of John Ellis Gray b. Castine, Me. (Capt.) and Nancy J. Harris b. Little Deer Isle, Me.

Believe this to be John Elis Gray b. Jan. 17, 1819 and recorded at Sedgwick, Me. with the family of William Kench and Mary (Dorr). Looks very much like an unrecorded son of Isaac B. Gray (6) and Sarah (Harris). See 2-6 A possible reason why John Ellis Gray was brought up in the family of William Kench is that his wife, Mary, was a daughter of Benaiah Dorr. Polly Dorr was a sister of Benaiah's. Evidence suggests that Benaiah and Polly were children of John Dorr and Rebecca (Gray) (5), therefore Polly was an aunt to Mary (Dorr) who m. William Kench. See 1-2 The C/1850, Deer Isle, Me shows Polly D. age 17 or 67 residing in the family of Isaac B. Gray (6) and Sarah (Harris). See 2-6 If age 67 is correct, this could have been Polly Dorr, dau. of John Dorr and Rebecca (Gray) and granddaughter of Andrew Gray (4) and Lydia (Brown). In 1819 she would have been 36 yrs. old. Perhaps she was the mother of an illegitimate child, John Ellis Gray. Polly was a "cousin" of Isaac B. Gray.

EZRA PARKER GRAY and SOLOMON DEXTER GRAY

The identity of two individuals, Ezra Parker Gray (called Parker), and Solomon Dexter Gray, (called Dexter) remains unclear. Following is a recap of what is known about each and a theory as to their parentage.

Ezra Parker Gray, born about 1822 according to the census of 1850-60-70 Ellsworth; about December 1821 according to gravestone inscription West Ellsworth. Died at West Ellsworth May 25, 1886 age 64 years 5 months. Married at Blue Hill Feb. 29, 1844 to Matilda (Black) of Blue Hill. The record shows the grooms name as Isreal (a common interchange of names) and his residence as Sedgwick. Matilda was a daughter of David Black and Ruth (Gray), and was born about 1823 according to the census of 1850-60-70 Ellsworth. Between 1844 and 1850 Ezra moved to West Ellsworth and was engaged in the lumber and sawmill business for the remainder of his life. He served in the Union Army (18th Me. Regt.) during the Civil War and was wounded. Ezra and Matilda had the following children:

1. Washburn b. abt. 1844 Prob. died in Civil War
2. William B. b. abt. 1846
3. Alonzo b. abt. 1849 Called Jerome as infant
4. Albert b. abt. 1852
5. Alvin b. abt. 1855
6. Charles A. b. abt. 1856
7. Harry (or Harvey) M. b. abt. 1859

Another child, Emma Frances b. abt. 1861, is listed with the family of Ezra Parker Gray in the 1870 census. She may have been his daughter, or a duaghter of James Emery Gray whose wife died in 1865. Ezra took into his family three other of James's children. Emma Frances was a deaf-mute and later married David (Doctor Dave) Gray (8) Joachim (7) Benjamin (6) Reuben, Jr. (5) Reuben (4) Joshua (3) as his second wife.

Solomon Dexter Gray, born about 1822. Shown as age 28 in census of 1850 Sedgwick. Before 1850 he married Ruth (Black), b. abt. 1828, shown as age 22 in the census of 1850, daughter of David Black and Ruth (Gray) of Blue Hill. She was a sister to Matilda (Black) mentioned previously. Solomon died in 1858 according to a notation in the family Bible of Col. Reuben H. Gray. This is substantiated by a deed (Vol. 105, page 508 Hancock Co. Registry of Deeds) dated March 25, 1858 disposing of his homestead which refers to the seller as "Ruth Gray, relict of the late Solomon D. Gray of Sedgwick". The property was located in Sedgwick on the eastern side of the "Mines Road" within a short distance of the Sedgwick/Blue Hill town line. Nothing has been found indicating Solomon and Ruth had any children.

(Sect. 7-35) Ruth married second Robert Douglass and they had three or more children. Apparently they separated and lived apart. Both are buried in the Grindle family cemetery on the Kingdom Road, Blue Hill, near its western end.

Stanley D. Gray, in his notes, shows Solomon Dexter as being a child of Samuel Gray (6) Reuben, Jr. (5) Reuben (4) Joshua (3) and his first wife, Betsey. This however is not reflected in the Sedgwick town records.

Based purely on circumstantial evidence and intuition, it would seem that Ezra Parker and Solomon Dexter Gray were brothers and were children of Capt. Thomas Gray and his wife, Patience W. (Gray). See 2-34.

Following is the information available on that family:

Thomas Gray (6), born Sedgwick, Me. Jan. 31, 1789, son of Nathaniel Gray (5) John (4) Joshua (3) and his wife Elizabeth (Snow). Thomas was a mariner all his life, eventually becoming a Captain. He was lost at sea according to Sedgwick records, but the date is not shown. He was married at Sedgwick October 28, 1811, to Patience W. (Gray), born Jan. 20, 1795 or 1796 (recorded both ways), died July 1, 1873 age 78 yrs. (Cem.) Daughter of Reuben Gray, Jr. (5) and his wife Sarah G. (Herrick).

Children:
1. Rosanna b. June 14, 1812
2. James Madison b. Nov. 1, 1813
3. Octava b. Nov. 11, 1816 d. May 6, 182?
4. Thomas Watson b. Nov. 11, 1819
5. Mary Jane b. Feb. 29, 1820 d. Apr. 29, 1823
6. Reuben H. b. Mar. 29, 1823
7. Phebe Jane b. Sept. 29, 1826

There appears to be a descrepancy in the birth date of either child no. 4 or 5. It seems unlikely that Mary Jane was born less than four months after the birth of Thomas Watson. As Mary Jane's birthday is shown as Feb. 29, 1820 and 1820 was a leap year, her birth date is probably correct and that of Thomas Watson wrong.

After Capt. Thomas was lost at sea, Patience married 2nd, Andrew Wood of Blue Hill. The marriage took place Nov. 10, 1831. If one assumes that Phebe Jane, b. Sept. 26, 1826, was Patience's last child by Capt. Thomas, and that she waited at least a year after her 1st husband's death before remarrying, this places the date of Capt. Thomas's death as between early 1826 and late 1830.

Following are some of the things that were considered in arriving at the conclusion:

1. Inasmuch as Thomas was a mariner he would be likely to maintain his family in a place where he could be with it between trips, thus it is quite probable that the family lived outside of the local Sedgwick/Brooksville/Blue Hill area at various times. It is quite possible that children were born in those places and were never recorded in Sedgwick or Blue Hill.

2. Patience had brothers named "Solomon" and "Ezra Parker" and "Reuben H." Gray. She named one of her children "Reuben H." obviously after one of her brothers. Is it not reasonable to assume that she named other children after other of her brothers, i.e "Solomon" and "Ezra Parker"? (There was no other "Ezra Parker" other than her brother in the area at the time.)

3. An undated and unrecorded deed now in the possession of Dr. Philip Gray of Blue Hill records the sale of an acre of land with a house on it to Thomas Gray by Andrew Gray, a brother to Patience. The lot was located in West Sedgwick, very close to the home of Col Reuben H. Gray and only a short distance from the home of Samuel Gray another brother to Patience.

4. When Patience was widowed in 1826-30 the two oldest children were 13 and 18 years old and probably able to take care of themselves. This however left Patience with at least three children in ages ranging from 11 to less than 1 years old. If Ezra Parker and Solomon Dexter also belonged to her they would have been 5 to 9 and 4 to 8 years old respectively, making a total of five small children. This would have created a real problem to the widow, and it is quite probable that some of the children were taken in and reared by relatives as was the custom of the time. Possibly Solomon Dexter was taken in by his uncle, Col. Reuben H. Gray, which would perhaps account for his death being recorded in Reuben's family Bible. Or perhaps his uncle Samuel reared Solomon Dexter, which may have led Stanley D. Gray to believe that he was one of Samuel's children.

5. Ezra Parker and Solomon Dexter married sisters, Matilda and Ruth (Black). They were daughters of David Black and Ruth (Gray), who lived just north of the Kingdom Road in Blue Hill, a short distance east of the Blue Hill/Penobscot town line. They would have been close neighbors to Col. Reuben H. Gray, and to Capt. Thomas's family while the latter was living in the house purchased by Thomas from Andrew Gray. They were also reasonably close to Andrew Wood's home where Patience (and presumably her children) lived after her remarriage. This is mentioned to illustrate that there was opportunity for contact between the children of David Black and those of Thomas Gray.

It is appropriate to mention here that Stanley D. Gray, in his notes, also shows James E. (Emery) Gray as being a son of Samuel Gray (6). See 7-5a.

It is true that the census of 1850, Sedgwick, shows a James E. Gray, age 19, (b. abt. 1831) residing in the household of Samuel Gray and his 2nd wife, Azuba (Billings), however the Sedgwick vital records do not show James as a child of Samuel, nor do any of the family records or traditions mention him as such.

James Emery Gray married Dianah (Black), a daughter of David Black and Ruth (Gray) and a younger sister to Matilda, wife of Ezra Parker, and to Ruth, wife of Solomon Dexter. James Emery followed Ezra Parker to West Ellsworth and there was a definite closeness between the two families. This is evidenced by the fact that Ezra Parker took into his own household the children of James Emery after their mother, Dianah, died in 1865. It seems likely that this closeness resulted from the two wives being sisters; it is possible however that James Emery was in fact the last child of Capt. Thomas to be born to Patience, and that he was brought up by his uncle Samuel Gray. The probability of three brothers marrying three sisters seems quite remote, consequently it may not be wise to subscribe to this theory despite Stanley Gray's notes, -- yet -- time-wise, it is possible. It seems that James Emery Gray, b. abt. 1831, belongs with the family of James Gray (6) Samuel (5) Reuben (4) Joshua (3). See 3-174. However there seems to be no satisfactory explanation for his being listed with the family of his cousin (?) Samuel Gray in the 1850 census.

According to Stanley Gray, James Emery Gray moved to California. This probably was shortly after his wife's death in 1865. No traces of him have been found in the California records.

About the Authors

Captain Almon Andrew Gray U.S.N. (Ret.)

Captain Gray was born in Blue Hill, Maine, Aug. 23, 1910. After being graduated from George Stevens Academy there he attended the Massachusetts Radio and Telegraph School in Boston and became a licensed Radiotelegraph Operator. In 1931 he enlisted in the Navy. Shortly thereafter he was assigned to aviation duty and placed in flight status as a radioman/gunner. In 1934 he learned to fly and obtained his first pilot's license.

Upon expiration of his enlistment in 1935, Capt. Gray went with Pan American Airways, which then was preparing to start the first air service across the Pacific. He accompanied the expedition which built the communication and base facilities along the proposed route (Hawaii - Midway Isl. - Wake Isl. - Guam - Manila) and was in charge of the first radio station on Wake Island. When the flying boats especially designed for the Pacific service were ready for service Capt. Gray returned to flight status. He served in the crew of the "China Clipper" so much in the headlines in the mid thirties, and made many of the early flights to the Orient and to New Zealand. In 1937 he became Assistant Superintendent of Communications for the Pacific area.

Shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor, Capt. Gray, then a Lieutenant in the Naval Reserve, was ordered to active duty and assigned to the Naval Air Transport Service, then being organized, to be the Communications and Electronics Officer for NATS operation in the Pacific area. He remained with NATS for the duration, and was responsible for providing communications and electronic navigation facilities to support NATS operations wherever they might be required to operate. The function of NATS was to provide air transportation for cargo and passengers to the war zone, and to evacuate wounded from the battle areas to hospitals in Hawaii and the United States proper. By war's end the Pacific Wing of NATS was operating across the United States, to and within Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, throughout the north and south Pacific ocean areas, in New Zealand, Australia, the East Indies, Philippine Islands, Iwo Jima, Okinawa and China. It was one of the largest air transport organizations in the world.

When the occupation of the Japanese home islands became imminent, Capt. Gray was detailed to the Army Air Force for liaison duty and accompanied General MacArthur's "air armada" into Japan. He assisted in the recovery and evacuation of American prisoners of war and later represented the Navy in planning the rehabilitation and construction of communication and electronic facilities to support air transport service within Japan.

Upon being released from active duty in 1946, Capt. Gray, then a Commander, became an aviation safety specialist in the headquarters of the Civil Aeronautics Administration (the forerunner of the Federal Aviation Agency), and headed a group concerned with the safety aspects of communication and electronic aids to navigation utilized by American air carriers, world wide.

During the Berlin airlift in 1948, Capt. Gray again was recalled to the Navy and was on active duty at the outbreak of the Korean "police action". He served on the staff of the Chief, Naval Air Training, while the naval air arm was being rebuilt to war-time strength. During 1953-54 he was the Air Communication Officer on the staff of Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet. In 1959 he graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

During the "cold war" period of the late fifties and early sixties Capt. Gray was detailed to the Central Intelligence Agency and served as Special Assistant to the Director of Communications. He also served several years in the Office of Emergency Planning assisting in the development of plans for the war-time mobilization and utilization of the commercial and private telephone, telegraph and radio systems of the nation.

Capt. Gray's last assignment before retiring from Government service in 1968 was with the National Communications System, where, as Chief of Future Plans, he participated in the planning and development of the first military satellite communications system, and of the satellite communication system which supported the Apollo moon mission. From these systems evolved the satellite communication systems which now link together many of the nations of the world, and through which many of our TV programs and telephone calls are handled.

Capt. Gray is a member of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, The Society of Wireless Pioneers, the American Legion, the Civil Air Patrol, and numerous other technical societies. Since retirement he has been active in civic affairs, and his Amateur Radio Station, W1KA, is heard all over the world. He is married to the former Florence Evelyn Brown of Bremerton, Wash., and they live in West Sedgwick, Me.

Walter A. Snow

Mr. Snow's work as an author in the fields of genealogy and local history nearly parallels his career as a teacher of music. As he recalls it, he began what he characterizes as the "complex but fascinating" history of the Gray family in 1957, four years after he and his family moved to Brooksville, a rich lode of early New England families. It was here Mr. Snow prospected his first genealogies and histories, and in a few years manuscripts had been developed on the Snow family and its allied branches, the Grindle (Grindel, Grindell, Grindal) family research had reached advanced stages, and interestingly, every Brooksville family of early New England origin had to considerable depth been researched and recorded in his files, some of it for a second time after his home burned to the ground in 1967.

Born in Stonington, Maine, April 6, 1926, Mr. Snow grew up in that island community and was graduated from its schools, the high school in 1944. After stints of work in the shipyards at Bath and Portland, Maine, and in Brooklyn, New York, Walter returned and in Bangor matriculated at the Northern Conservatory of Music. By 1952 he had earned his Bachelor of Music degree and was qualified and ready to begin his work as a teacher. In general he signed contracts with schools in the state, beginning with one offered by Higgins Classical Institute in Charleston, followed by others at Milo, Brownville, School Union #93 (Castine, Brooksville, Penobscot, and Blue Hill, where he was Supervisor of Music), Searsport, Bradford Academy, Bradford, Vermont, Oakland, Maine, School Union #93 again in 1964, and his last contract with School Administrative District #73 (his hometown Stonington, Deer Isle, Brooksville, Brooklin, and Sedgwick). During this latter period, Walter was invited to teach summer sessions at his Alma Mater, and he traveled daily to Bangor to instruct students in Music Education Courses. During this time he played the oboe with the Bangor and Lincoln County, Maine Symphony Orchestras. By this time Brooksville history and genealogical studies had become a concern of serious interest and commitment, particularly the history of the Gray family.

After an illness in 1970, which limited his physical activity, Mr. Snow retired from the field of music, devoting all of his time to genealogy.

In 1968, through the interest and encouragement of Captain Almon Gray, a collaboration on the Gray family research was begun in earnest, and the two men developed techniques and procedures that resulted in the volume on the Gray family presented here.

Walter Snow and Ellen Carter of Searsport were married in 1951. They have three children, and all of them reside in Brooksville.
